Government in War On $30-Week Pensions

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—The federal government today declared war against California's "Thirty Dollars Every Thursday" pension plan in a move to halt the spread of similar schemes to other states.

From high federal financial officials it was learned that all banks coming under the government's supervision will be forbidden to accept as legal tender the pension warrants that would be issued if the California program is adopted.

Under the California pension plan, the state would issue warrants in the amount of $30 to each eligible pensioner. Each warrant, in the denomination of $1, would be legal tender in the state provided a two-cent tax stamp is affixed to the warrant every week.

Sec. Morgenthau

This tax stamp is affixed to the warrant which would be redeemed for $1 by the state at the end of the year.

Both President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau already have condemned the proposal as economically unsound.

A study of the scheme's financial ramifications was completed recently by federal fiscal experts.

On the basis of this study, which is being kept confidential, the administration's attitude toward the California plan may be summed up as follows:

1. The plan is unconstitutional in the light of Supreme Court rulings. Article 1, section 10, clause 1 of the Constitution provides that no state shall coin money, emit bills of credit or make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of legal debts.

2. Since the state would substitute something for lawful money there would result discriminations against the pension warrants which in turn would result in price differentials.

3. The plan places a severe tax burden on the holders of the warrants since they must buy the tax stamps to maintain the value of the warrant.

Dowd Is O.K'd For Keliher Job

City Councillor John F. Dowd, Democratic nominee for sheriff of Suffolk County, today was appointed and confirmed by Governor Hurley and his council to serve the unexpired term of Sheriff John A. Keliher, who died as primary returns declared him the Republican nominee for re-election.

Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, who has been acting commissioner of the state department of mental diseases, was nominated to the $10,000 a year post of commissioner for six years in the total of 16 appointments made at the governor's council meeting.

At the same meeting, the governor's reappointment of Francis M. Curran as a member of the state labor relations board last week was ordered tabled for further consideration.

JAKKMAUH NAME PASSED

Councillor Frank T. Brooks opposed naming Dowd on the ground the jail was being run efficiently under Acting Sheriff Daniel A. Whelton and that permanent jurisdiction should await decision of the electorate.

Governor Hurley, in sponsoring the Dowd appointment, remarked that he thought it would be a good

Daladier Wins Rule by Decree

PARIS, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Senate today voted 286 to 4 to grant Premier Edouard Daladier's cabinet powers to govern France by decree until Nov. 15, powers already approved by the Chamber of Deputies.

Earlier the premier had won the Chamber of Deputies consent after a stormy night, of political maneuvering, during which he was forced to make repeated concessions to avoid overthrow of his government.

The vote was 331 to 78 with 204 deputies refusing to vote, notably different from the 535 to 75 approval with which the chamber acclaimed Daladier as a savior of peace.

State's Surprise Witness Ready

With at least four surprise witnesses ready to give headline testimony and the stage set for a legal-political drama having far-reaching implications, final preparations were being made today to put "mystery man" Frederick H. Graves on trial tomorrow on a double charge of perjury.

WAITS GRAVES TRIAL—Mrs. Lillian H. Thomas, St. Louis socialite, waits in strict seclusion for trial of Frederick H. Graves on double charge of perjury.

According to information obtained exclusively by the Boston Evening American, an early highlight of the trial will be state-presented evidence in regard to Graves' whereabouts when he was supposed to be unaccountably missing.

Witnesses will place him within 50 miles of Boston, at one time during that period, and in telephone communication with prominent persons here, the American is now able to reveal.

F. H. Graves

Prosecution of Graves resulted from allegedly conflicting stories he told before the Boston Finance Commission and later in Suffolk Superior Court.

He was the city's so-called "key witness" against former Governor James M. Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso in a suit brought to recover $50,000 represented as improperly received by the defendants in connection with an $85,000 damage settlement.

During trial of the Curley-Santosuosso suit, affidavits and depositions placed Graves as mysteriously absent and beyond reach of subpoena.

4 SURPRISE WITNESSES

In reality, he was in a New England hotel and was making telephone calls to persons in Bos-

Flattery Turns Girl's Head —Also Key in Jail's Lock!

LEXINGTON, N. C., Oct. 5—"Lula Belle! Lula Bell, you're beautiful!"
No man ever had told Lula Belle that before.

Lula Belle is a big girl. She weighs 175 pounds, and besides, she is the jailer's daughter. Her father used her as "handy man" around the jail.

James Godwin

"Sure, you're a big girl, Lulu Belle," crooned handsome, 19-year-old James Godwin. "You're statuesque, Lula Belle. That's what you are—a statuesque! Who wants a little bit of a woman, anyway?

"Lula Belle, your voice is lovely. You're a grand person, Lula Belle!"

No one had ever before told Lula Belle her voice was lovely, or that she was a grand person, either.

"OH, LULA BELLE!"

"She's a honey, ain't she, Bill?" said Godwin, appealing to his jail mate, Bill Wilson, 21. "Ain't she a honey, Bill? It's almost—almost worth being in jail for, ain't it?"

"Lula Belle," said Godwin, "I could go for you in a big way. I'd go straight for you, Lula Belle. This is a bum rap they got on me and Bill, here. Murder!—we never killed nobody, Lula Belle. You believe me, don't you?

LULA BELL KIMEL

THANKS FOR HER

"I should have met you long ago, Lulu Belle. Me and Bill, here, wouldn't be in this jam if we'd known you. Well, it's too late now, I suppose. I'll be thinking of you, Lula Belle, when they take me into that there lethal chamber and turn on the gas. I'll be thinking of you——"

"No!" said Lula Belle. "No! No! No!"

The keys—she carried the keys to the cells—shook in her hands. She could hardly see for tears—could hardly . . . fit the right key into the cell door lock.

"Run!" she whispered. "Go on! Get away! You too, Bill! Oh, Jimmie, darling! I couldn't bear it! Jimmie—!"

"Thanks, Lula Belle," said Godwin.

BUT—HE WAS NICE!

So that's why Lula Belle isn't the jailer's daughter any more today.

Her papa, T. C. Kimel, has resigned—and Lula Belle is in jail. A posse is hunting Godwin and Wilson who are charged with another killing since their escape.

"And him a married man, too!" said Papa Kimel, reproachfully. "Falling for him—falling for a line like that!"

"He was such a nice young man," said Lula Belle.

She faces trial on a misdemeanor charge.

No Pangs At Giving Up Her Husband

Eloper's Wife Wants Divorce

"I intend to start divorce proceedings in the very immediate future."

Boys and Girls! Do You Want This Pup?

PITY for Shirley Smith, Winchester girl found in North Carolina, is the only feeling in the case expressed by Mrs. Phyllis Hunter Newhall, wife of the man held on abduction charge and awaiting extradition.

That was the decision today of Phyllis Hunter Newhall, estranged young wife of eloping George Everett Newhall, who was discovered in Lexington, N. C., with 18-year-old Shirley Smith, missing Winchester girl.

Shirley was on her way home today with her dad, C. Harold Smith, while Newhall was held by police at Lexington, N. C., awaiting extradition on abduction and federal Mann act charges.

The comely Mrs. Newhall acted upon her decision and consulted with Attorney Joseph Kruger relative to a suit for divorce.

"This is the last straw," she said. "I have been putting off a divorce because of lack of money. But now I shall scrape every cent together and act.

"This all has been particularly embarrassing to me. My parents who are respectable living people will be shocked.

"It is they I am thinking of. I was brought up strictly. I even taught Sunday school. This mess is all alien to me."

Reminded that her divorce decision would ease the way for her husband, who wanted nothing better than freedom to marry Shirley, she replied:

"I am not thinking of my husband. I am thinking of myself. What he does, after the divorce, is no concern of mine.

"If my decision affects happiness for Shirley, that is for her to decide.

"My decision is guided by my own interests only. George's recent act has just hastened my act.

"I shall be happy to be free of him!"

'Bad Colds' Balk Cambridge Plan

It looked today as if an epidemic of "bad colds" and "ailing grandmothers" would prevent a Cambridge city council quorum from being present Friday afternoon to put Cambridge's city manager plan referendum on the November ballot.

More than 8000 Cambridge citizens signed a petition demanding a vote on "Plan E," calling for establishment of a city manager form of government.

But official report of the petition must be communicated to the Secretary of State by the Cambridge City Council not later than Saturday noon if a referendum this election time is to be made possible.

Last chance for the council to act will be at a special meeting, called for Friday afternoon at 5:15.

But . . .

Council members, polled today by the Boston Evening American, offered numerous "reasons" why they might not be able to attend the meeting.

"I'm coming down with a bad cold," one said. "It looks now as if I'd have to stay home Friday."

Another said:

"My grandmother has died again. I'll have to be out of town for her funeral."

Other reports were:

"I'll be busy Friday finding out who beat me for representative."

"I've got a date to play chess."

"Friday I've got to see the fellow who thinks he's going to be the new police commissioner. He wants me to see how he looks in his uniform."

"I'll be studying World Series box scores."

"I've heard there's going to be a meeting, but I don't believe that kind of rumors."

Only optimistic note was sounded by City Council President Thomas M. McNamara.

He said:

"I'll be there banging the gavel at 5:15, sharp. The other members are all public spirited. They ought to be there, too.

"I suppose we can count on the Brattle street razzers and hissers to bring their jeer-leader, Councillor Winslow."

Winslow led a vain fight, last night, to have the council act on Plan E at its regular meeting.

Medford Man Held On Theft Charges

Joseph D. Paola 27, High street, Medford, was held in $3000 bonds and his case continued to October 14 by Judge E. G. Davis in Malden district court today when arraigned on a charge of having stolen 372 gallons of anti-freeze, valued at $586, from a Cambridge concern.

Police said the greater part of the anti-freeze was recovered in a raid on a house in Malden. Paola pleaded not guilty.

Her Kidnaper A Galahad

ST. PAUL, Oct. 5 (INS)—The paradox of a murderous kidnaper who, nevertheless, had a bit of the Galahad in him was described in federal court here by Peggy Gross, pretty young St. Louis socialite.

Miss Gross testified at the trial of John Couch, accused of kidnaping the girl and her escort, Daniel Fahey, Jr., young St. Louis attorney, and forcing the couple to accompany him from St. Louis to Minneapolis in an automobile.

The Galahad in the abduction, according to Miss Gross, was Otis J. Meredith, Couch's partner who later was slain. Meredith, the young woman testified, threatened to shoot Couch if he harmed her in any way.

In answer to a question by Couch's counsel as to whether the defendant had treated her "as a gentleman should," Miss Gross replied:

"No, not the entire trip."

MRS. GERARDELL
Divorces Doctor

Dr. Gerardell Divorced On Grounds of Cruelty

Dr. Herbert N. Gerardell, head surgeon of the Brookline General Hospital, was divorced today in Dedham probate court by his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Waltz Gerardell, on charges of cruel and abusive treatment.

DR. H. B. GERARDELL

Dr. Gerardell, who did not contest the suit, was ordered to pay $25 monthly for support of their six-year-old daughter, Charlotte, placed by the court in the custody of the mother.

The decree handed down against the Brookline doctor by Judge Joseph R. McCoole marks another milestone in his recent parade through the courts.

In 1935 he was sued for breach of promise by Miss Henriette M. Zdanowicz, 25, a member of his hospital nursing staff, who alleged he induced her to occupy an apartment with him in Cambridge while posing as a single man.

That action is still pending, although Miss Zdanowicz won a preliminary skirmish by recovering under court order $1000 worth of furniture she said she bought for the apartment.

In September of last year Dr. Gerardell accused Miss Marie Fiore of Copeland street, Roxbury, of the theft of $700 from his pocketbook while a visitor at her apartment.

She was acquitted in court of the larceny charge.

In her testimony today in Dedham, Mrs. Gerardell said the doctor frequently stayed away from home for long periods and struck her several times when she reproved him for his absences.

Angered Judge Orders Arrest of Sally Rand

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5 (INS)—A bench warrant was out today for Sally Rand, the au naturel dancer.

And while Sally purportedly sizzled in Philadelphia over the strange outcome of a battle in a theater recently with a young man and woman who wanted to take pictures of her while she did her bubble dance, her attorney and a municipal judge sizzled here.

Her case, in which Hazel Drain and Ray Stanford accused her of assaulting them, was due to be heard in Judge H. B. Landreth's court after several delays.

Some weeks ago Judge Landreth released Sally without bail and postponed the hearing when she pleaded theatrical engagements. But today the judge was irked, and promptly issued a bench warrant for her arrest, setting bail at $2500.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5 (INS)—Sally Rand laid her fan and bubble aside today with announcement that she planned to return to Los Angeles where a warrant has been issued for her arrest.

Concluding a vaudeville engagement here, she said she would head West at once to "face the music" for her failure to appear at trial in Los Angeles on assault and battery charges.

"I understood the case had been settled out of court," she explained.

REPRIMANDED by Judge Mahoney in Suffolk probate court for not wearing wedding ring, Mrs. Louise Sweeney of Beech street, Belmont, lost suit for separate support and for custody of four children.

Minus Ring, No Support!

"A wife who won't wear her wedding ring wants to masquerade as a single woman."

This was the observation of Judge John V. Mahoney in denying the separate support petition of Mrs. Louise Sweeney, who appeared in Suffolk Probate Court, minus the signia of wifehood.

Judge Mahoney dismissed the wife's petition, and allowed four minor children to remain in the custody of the husband, Leon Sweeney.

Mrs. Sweeney charged her mate with cruel and abusive treatment and gross habits of intoxication while Sweeney countered with the charge that his wife often left home for long periods, and on one occasion was seen kissing another man.

Weighs Charges Of Jail Guard

Commissioner of Penal Institutions John J. Douglas today studied the testimony presented in a City Hall hearing on charges that William E. Riley, assistant deputy master at Deer Island, had beaten a guard at the institution.

The charges were brought by John M. Finan, who said Riley burst into his room and attacked him so that he required treatment by the Deer Island physician.

Riley, suspended two weeks ago, branded the charge a "frame up." He asserted he rebuked Finan for tardiness but never struck him.

Man Trapped, El Stalled, Firemen Hurt in 2 Fires

Damage totalling $20,000 was caused by two fires, one a two-alarm blaze in Causeway street, North End, and the other a burning furniture store in Central square, Cambridge, early today.

John Cunio, 57, caretaker in the Hub Racing Pigeon Club headquarters, was led to safety down smoke-filled stairways by Alexander Milawco and Nicholas Marino, taxi drivers, after flames broke out the rear of a tavern at the corner of Causeway and Beverly streets, and spread to two adjoining buildings.

Two firemen, Daniel Crowley of Engine 38 and Walter E. Kelly of Engine 4, were injured by flying glass in the North End blaze, which caused $15,000 damage to three buildings. Clouds of smoke poured over the Boston Elevated structure and traffic was tied up on Causeway street near North Station more than an hour.

In the Cambridge fire, furniture in a second-hand shop of the Central square building, and fruit and produce in a basement market were damaged.

Loss was unofficially estimated at $5000.

Benes Resigns To Ease Terms

PRAGUE, Oct. 5 (INS)—His lifework shattered by the Munich four-power agreement which gave the Sudetenland to Nazi Germany, President Eduard Benes stepped out of office today as the second president of Czechoslovakia.

The successor of Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, who founded this post-war republic and died before a serious threat to his sovereignty developed, reluctantly relinquished office as had been predicted ever since Hitler announced his intention of regaining the Sudetenland.

FUTURE IN DOUBT

Benes' resignation left the immediate future of Czechoslovakia in doubt. Only yesterday, the cabinet of Premier General Jan Syrovy was reconstituted in an effort to meet the growing demands of Slovaks for full autonomy. As Hungarian demands for equal treatment with Germany and Poland in the matter of minorities mounted, Czechoslovakia seemed destined for a carving up more thorough and far-reaching than ever envisioned.

Vilified by Hitler and praised by the world's democracies for his long and determined resistance to German invasion, Benes was the man who by the sheer force of his personality and will held Czechoslovakia together until the four big powers of Europe decided only by its partition could peace be saved.

MAY LIGHTEN YOKE

It was Benes who represented Czechoslovakia at the peace conferences which brought the nation into being, and Benes who incurred the deathless hatrdel of Hitler for refusing until all hope had vanished to hand over an inch of Czech territory to Germany.

Benes, in his letter of resignation said:

"hTe eventful three years of my presidency have culminated in very sad events during these last few days.

"These historic events have changed he whole basis of our existence. . . . Circumstances have changed so completely that I feel my remaining in office might constitute an obstacle to the new conditions which confront the state."

Commons Gets Motion to Vote On Peace Pact

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told Commons today Britain was seeking the release of "certain Czech officials in frontier districts" and Czech residents in Germany who had been imprisoned in Germany as "hostages."

Opening the third day of debate on his four-power accord of Munich, Chamberlain said the government had received reports such officials and residents were held during the occupation of ceded territory.

MOTION INTRODUCED

The government's demand for a vote of confidence for the bargain by which Chamberlain averted a European war was placed before Commons by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, who introduced this motion:

"That this house approves the policy of his majesty's government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and supports their efforts to secure a lasting peace."

The House is not expected to vote on it until tomorrow.

Sir John told the House Britain had no desire to shut the Soviet Union out of "any future settlement of Europe."

"It is our hope that Russia will be willing to join in the guarantee of Czechoslovakia," he said.

"It is most important that she should do so. The government (British) had no intention whatever of trying to exclude Russia from any future settlement of Europe."

SOVIET STATEMENT

At almost the moment of this declaration the Soviet embassy in London issued a statement drawing attention to dispatches of Tass, Russian official news agency, to the effect that the Soviet Union had nothing whatever to do with the Munich conference or its decisions.

Hitler Seeks Reparations

Copyright, 1938, by the Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 5—German claims for "reparations for injustices inflicted by the Czechs on the Sudetens since 1918" loomed today as a formidable obstacle to completion of a peaceful settlement of Germany's quarrel with Czechoslovakia.

German financial experts were understood to be busy already drawing up a bill for such damages, and informed observers believed Reichsfuehrer Hitler would press the reparations demands as insistently as his previous ones.

A Foreign Office spokesman said this question was one of several difficulties confronting the international commission for supervision of the cession of Sudetenland, which resumed its deliberations at the Foreign Office today.

Others were delimitation of the fifth zone of German occupation and determination of a just basis for plebiscites in doubtful areas of Czechoslovakia.

Even as the Czechoslovaks were withdrawing from the lost territories, Der Angriff, organ of propaganda minister, Paul Joseph Goebbels, declared:

EVERYTHING COUNTED

"Provision has been made for keeping exact count on everything in the way of Sudeten property that the Czechs take with them."

However, no estimates of what may be claimed as reparations were available.

Neutral observers believed that Hitler's reparations claims would furnish a powerful incentive for Czechoslovakia to fall into line economically with Germany as soon as possible.

It was considered sure that Germany would make easier terms for payment of reparations if Czechoslovakia became part of her Danubian economic system.

The foreign office spokesman indicated that progress for the international commission on the Sudetenland might be more difficult from this point on.

"Hitherto it was easy, as the four zones (to be occupied by the German army before October 8) were already fixed at Munich and only certain technical details remained," he said.

"The fifth zone proves more difficult. Also there is the question of reparations for the injustices inflicted by the Czechs upon the Sudetens since 1918."

MAI INCOMPLETE

Previously an inspired source close to the foreign office indicated such preparations would be demanded of Czechoslovakia just as soon as the Sudetenland was completely in German hands.

To the Munich accord was attached a map showing the first four zones ceded by Czechoslovakia for speedy occupation by the Germans. Occupation of the first three has been completed or is under way. Occupation of the fourth is to be finished today.

Girl Held As Shoplifter

Appearing in Lynn District Court today on a charge of driving without a license, Miss Agnes Murphy, 20, of Essex street, Lynn, was faced with four additional counts of larceny of clothing.

The Junoesque brunette pleaded not guilty, and Judge Ralph W. Reeve continued the case until Friday.

Miss Murphy and George Chapman, 22, of Green street, Lynn, have already been arraigned in Salem court on charges of stealing feminine undergarments from stores in that city.

They are out on bail to appear tomorrow for hearing.

Best Story of the War

That Ape Army — 'Twas So Funny!

SHANGHAI, Oct. 5 (INS)—It proved to have been nothing more than a typographical error of sorts, but it was a good story while it lasted. Namely, the fascinating yarn that the Chinese army had recruited and trained a regiment of orang-utans to hurl bombs and hand grenades and otherwise wreak havoc on the Japanese.

Shanghai newspapers went to town in their own inimitable way today in exposing the most amazing tale yet to be spun along the Sino-Japanese battlefront.

Unwittingly taking a leaf from the war-time propagandists who assailed German colonial administration on the grounds the Prussians were attempting to develop a race of trained gorillas to do the hard work along the Congo, a Tokyo newspaper mistranslated a Chinese character meaning "fierce tribesmen" and made it into monkeys.

The dispatch then went on to relate how a Chinese general in the remote interior had built up his Simian regiment, decking out apes or orang-utans in military costume and training them to hurl deadly missiles with the accuracy of a Sergeant York.

When telegraphed to Shanghai, the Tokyo newspaper story caused an immediate sensation. Linguists went to work, however, and found that the inspired Oriental who wrote the story failed to distinguish between "miao," meaning warrior, and "miao," meaning ape.

The Chinese way of dealing with the joke was to elaborate on it, reprinting the story with added ornamentation that included the solemn assertion:

"The general in command of our monkey army has found a way to reward his recruits for especial heroism. Each has been supplied with a tin cup, and when a hit is scored, a coin is ceremoniously dropped into it."

Police Renew Lyons Search

State Police Captain John F. Stokes today renewed the search for John A. Lyons, Back Bay war veteran, who has been missing since the night Grayce Asquith, Weymouth widow, was murdered.

Turned over to Stokes was the testimony of Mrs. Alice Weatherbee of Norwell, whose testimony won a month's respite for Oscar V. Bartolini, Quincy chef, who was to have died in the electric chair for the murder.

Mrs. Weatherbee told the Executive Council she had seen Lyons subsequent to the slaying of the widow on September 20, 1936.

Yom Kippur Observed by Boston Jews

With fasting and prayer, Jews throughout Greater Boston today observed Yom Kippur, most solemn holiday in the Jewish religious calendar.

From sundown last night until sundown tonight, pious Jews will refrain from food and drink in observance of the "Day of Atonement."

Throughout the day, congregations will spend much of their time in temple and synagogues, until sundown brings the blowing of the Shofar, or the rams horn, to signify passing of the holiday.

In Temple Mishkan Tefila, Rabbi Herman H. Rubenovitz said:

"The Day of Atonement represents the attempt of the Jew to establish afresh the harmony between his real life and the aspiration of his soul."

Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams of Temple Ohabei Shalom, in speaking on "The Jew's Status in the World," declared:

"Jewish opinion has always been strongly in sympathy with democracies," he said, "for the democratic spirit has been moulded throughout the ages of Jewish thought."

Brin Lauds U. S. 'Heroes of Peace'

"While they are beating the drums of destruction across the sea, exalting brute force and sanctifying robbery, America is establishing a new tradition of peace-time valor and heroism in coping with the recent hurricane and flood disaster," Alexander Brin, editor and publisher of the Jewish Advocate and a member of the State advisory board of education, declared today.

Brin spoke at Day of Atonement services in Whitney Hall, Brookline. He paid high tribute to all those working to alleviate conditions in the New England disaster areas.

"The supreme need of the nation is for heroes of peace," he declared. "In these days of wanting religion, lawlessness, bigotry and public apathy toward government, America needs a peaceful army of enlightened, patriotic, and courageous citizens who will think more of the well-being and preservation of the American republic than of their personal interests."

Child Bride, 16, Has Baby Son

Mrs. Geraldine Jordan Murphy, 16, who gained nation-wide fame early last year as Massachusetts first child bride, today became the mother of a son.

Officials of City Hospital, where the baby was born at 1:30 this morning, stated that mother and child were "doing well."

In spite of his previously expressed hope that the baby would be a girl, the father, Joseph Murphy, 22, was overjoyed at the news.

The couple eloped in March, 1937, when Geraldine was 14 and a seventh grade pupil

Rep. Chas. Kelley Reported Dying

WORCESTER, Oct. 5—Given the last rites of the Catholic church, State Representative Charles A. Kelley, 78, oldest member of the House, lay near death from cerebral hemorrhage in Worcester City Hospital today.

He was stricken in a department store. First elected in 1917, he has served 21 years in the House, 18 of them consecutively, and recently won renomination in the Democratic 15th district.

Mrs. Lillian T. Kent of Shrewsbury appears in Worcester court today after her husband, Walter, and Mrs. Jennie W. Scott, were arrested on a warrant sworn out by a WPA worker. Previously, Mrs. Kent sued Mrs. Scott for $50,000 love balm.

American Photo Boston Evening

Ex-Mission Worker Has Couple Held

WORCESTER, Oct. 5—A former rescue mission worker, now on WPA, caused the arrest today of Walter E. Kent, 34, and Mrsr. Jennie M. Scott, 31, widow who was named by Mrs. Lillian T. Kent of Shrewsbury in August in a $50,000 alienation of affections suit.

"I used to live in the same building with Kent and Mrs. Scott," the ex-rescue worker, Emanuel C. Moses, told the court. court. " thought they were married. When I read in the newspapers about Mrs. Kent's alienation suit, I realized who they were. I got to thinking I ought to do something about it, so I went to see a lawyer, and he advised me to swear out a complaint."

The lawyer, he admitted, was Mrs. Kent's lawyer in her alienation suit.

Mrs. Kent has a divorce petition pending, charging cruelty. She has three children. She was in court today, but not to press the new complaint against her husband. She wants more money, she told the judge. She testified her husband, an insurance man, left her in April and has given her "very little money" since.

Moses' charges against Kent and Mrs. Scott were continued to November 5, and both were released on bail.

Casualty Co. Founder Dies

Kelso Mairs, 67, founder of the Boston Casualty Company, died today at the Deaconess Hospital after a short illness.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Grace A. Reed Mairs; a daughter, Elinora M. Mairs, and two sons, D. Kelso and William J. Mairs.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning from St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Waltham at 9:30 a. m.

Burial will be at Mt. Feake's Cemetery, Waltham.

BOMB BARCELONA AGAIN

BARCELONA, Oct. 5 (AP)—Barcelona had its fourth day of alarms and bombardments today with three air raids in five hours this morning.

Dictator Plot, Gun Practice By Nazis Bared

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—A house committee inuvestigator testified today that the German-American bund at its 1937 National convention in New York arranged secretly at its 1937 national convention in New York arranged secretly to establish shooting ranges for all its storm troopers.

The investigator, John C. Metcalf told me the Dies committee investigating un-American activities that target ranges had been established by local units in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Reading, Pa., and Detroit.

He added that the troopers drilled and engaged in target practice at night during the summer.

eMtcalfe is a former storm trooper.

THIRD PARTY PLAN

eMtcalfe also said a movement has been started to merge Nazi-Fascist groups in the United States into a third party to drive toward the goal of dictatorship.

The plan, he said, is to unite the German-American Bund, Italian Fascists, Silver Shirts, Russian National League, Mexican Gold Shirts and a revived Ku Klux Klan.

Metcalfe named Newton Jenkins, Chicago lawyer and frequent candidate for office, as having attempted to unite "nationalist" groups into a third party.

Before Metcalfe began delving further into Nazi activities, Chairman Dies (D.) of Texas indicated the committee would ask the State Department to investigate charges made that Italian consuls seek to terrorize American citizens of Italian descent into supporting Premier Mussolini of Italy.

TELLS OF SECRET PLANS

Dies drew from Metcalfe a statement that the McCormack un-American activities committee in 1934 heard similar charges that Fascist Italian officials here were active in spreading Fascist propaganda.

"The committee transmitted its report and the evidence to the State Department for a complete investigation," said Metcalfe.

"We have had no occasion to find out whether the State Department made the investigation," said Dies. "The committee will consider the matter."

Metcalfe testified that plans were formulated secretly at the national convention of the German-American Bund in New York in July, 1937, to set up pistol and rifle ranges for storm troopers.

Diverting from this line of testimony, Metcalfe presented a copy of a Berlin, Germany, newspaper of August 29, 1938, stating that the oath of allegiance to Fuehrer Hitler was taken by persons from America and other foreign lands at Stuttgart.

Bandit Suspects Flee in Crash

At least one of them believed badly hurt in an automobile crash, two youths and two girls, suspected perpetrators of a miniature Greater Boston "crime wave," were being hunted by state and local police who sent out a state-wide alarm today.

HITCH-HIKE TO TROUBLE — Jeanette LaFrenier tells police she and a girl-friend accepted a ride in stolen car that crashed near Ayer . . . bringing great woe to them as police started search for driver as bandit.

Thought trapped in the woods near Ayer, the two couples later were believed to have stolen a car belonging to John Stocker, Groton School road, Ayer, shortly after daybreak.

A small army of local and state police continued searching the woods, while an alarm was flashed to guard all highways.

State troopers using floodlights, followed a trail of blood through the woods, with signs indicating at least one of the fugitives, bleeding profusely, was being carried or helped along by companions.

Two more girls, who claimed to be hitch-hikers, were seriously injured in the auto crash and were taken to Ayer Memorial Hospital. They gave the names of Florence Machacek, of Gardner, and Jeanette La Frenier, South Ashburnham.

At Ayer hospital, doctors said the Machacek girl's condition was critical. Her skull is fractured, they said.

Miss LaFrenier, unhurt in the crash, insisted to state police she and her girl friend had never seen the two couples before.

State Trooper Phillip King of the Lunenberg barracks first saw the speeding automobile on the Groton road. As he followed it, he saw it swerve from the highway into a ditch, the limb of a tree crushing windshield and top.

King sped to Ayer for aid and on returning, found only the two girl hitch-hikers. They said the four others, at least two of whom were badly hurt, fled into the woods.

Seek Tearful Gun Thief

There is a heap of crying ahead for the thief who stole a gun today from the automobile of Allen S. Gardner, collector for a Jersey street beer distributor.

The weapon is not the automatic pistol the pilferer evidently thought it to be but is a camouflaged tear-gas gun.

Because of the number of hold-ups perpetrated on collectors for the distributor, they obtained licenses to carry the tear-gas projectiles.

12 More Arabs Die In Holy Land Battle

JERUSALEM, Oct. 5 (AP)—Sir Harold MacMichael, high commissioner for Palestine, left by air today for London, probably to consult with the government on its plan to split Palestine into Jewish, Arab and British zones.

Meanwhile, 12 Arabs, believed to be part of the band which attacked Tiberias Monday, killing 19 Jews, were slain in an engagement with British troops.

SPEED N. Y. SERVICE

Double U. S. Air Force at Once, Bullard Warns

NEW YORK Oct 5 Declaring the United States is not prepared to repel ruthless aerial attack, Major Gen Robert Lee Bullard (ret) of the United States army, has issued a call to arms.

In an analysis of the air situation in Europe, published in the current issue of Liberty Magazine, Gen Bullard shows that the strength of the air forces of the principal European powers is greatly superior to that of the United States.

Gen Bullard, who was commander of the American expeditionary forces in France during the World war, and who has been active in military affairs since the last century, declares that the United States must have at least 10,000 planes in the air and 10,000 more in reserve.

"We cannot, after war starts," he writes in Liberty Magazine, "build up an adequate defense force in modern fighting planes. Their building takes too long.

"Second, in war today plane losses will be so heavy that any nation will be fortunate which is able to maintain in the air as many fighters as were available when hostilities started.

"Third, adequate skilled personnel cannot be provided in time after war starts. The late General Westover has pointed out that it takes as long to train a captain of a 'flying fortress' as to educate a doctor or lawyer."

Czech Savant Hits Brute Rule

"The brutal shall inherit the earth."

That's the opinion of one Munich professor, according to Professor Karl Deutsch of the University of Prague, Czechoslovakia, today, [illegible] the Harvard Students Union at a forum here.

"Hitler's acquisition of the Industrial Sudeten will aggravate, not alleviate, Germany's need for agricultural expansion," Professor Deutsch declared.

"The Sudetens, themselves will be the immediate sufferers. They have lost their chief markets and will find themselves cut off from raw materials.

Gets a Kick Out of Punch

She likes the sound of a punching bag and gets a certain solace out of the rhythm.

So Mrs. Uvello testified before Master Peter Borre in the celebrated punching bag feud involving Mrs. Mary Sullivan of East Fifth street, South Boston.

Mrs. Sullivan punches the bag in her backyard. She says it's good for the circulation, and beneficial to her health.

Mrs. Emma Kiezie, who wants her enjoined, says it is a nuisance, and is getting on her nerves.

Mrs. Uvello, a neighbor of both Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Kiezie, said the noise made by workmen putting a new fire escape on the Kiezie home was much more nerve shattering than the bag punching.

Asks Millions To Move Trees

Pleased but not placated by President Roosevelt's allotment of $11,000,000 for flood control in New England, Governor Hurley today pressed his plea for millions more to pay for salvaging the timber felled in the woodlands of Massachusetts by the hurricane.

In an urgent telegram to the President, he said the forest toll per constituted a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] if the dead wood remains in the forests and [illegible] be [illegible].

Launch Drive To Oust Jews In Sudetenland

Copyright 1938 by International News Service

KARLSBAD, Sudetenland, Germany, Oct. 5 (INS)—Carrying out Hitler's threat to rid the old resort city of the Jews, the mass exodus of anti-Semitic campaign designed to wipe out the race and Jewish influence in Greater Germany was launched in Sudetenland.

Within a few hours after the French troops in possession of the former German territory marched out as Zone 3 by the Munich accord, the drive against Jewish stores and homes began.

Jewish shops were closed and a boycott of all Jews in the area was under way. Shop windows were smeared with the word "Jew" by Nazi bucket squads. Windows were smashed.

Before cheering crowds in Karlsbad's market place, Hitler announced an immediate program of reconstruction would be begun throughout the new German territorial acquisitions. Karlsbad, the Nazi Fuehrer said, would again "reach its fame and popularity as the most best known spa."

From Karlsbad the chancellor will go to other German annex Czech cities on a tour of inspection to begin tomorrow or Thursday.

Czechs Take Arms As They Retreat

KARLSBAD, Sudetenland, Oct. 5 (AP)—Czechoslovak troops are taking with them all movable weapons and military equipment when they evacuate their fortifications in Sudetenland.

This apparently is being done with the approval of Major Strong, a British officer who preceded German troops as liaison officer and arranged details of the Czechoslovak evacuation.

Neither Major Strong nor the German army so far as can be learned has offered any objection to the stripping of the forts.

War Balked By Lindy's Report?

LONDON, Oct. (INS)—The London News Review, weekly British magazine today said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was a major figure in the inside drive of events which averted a world war last week.

A report that Lindbergh on pilgrimage by the famous American that the magazine said, showed that the Soviet air force despite claims made to the contrary, is inferior.

A copy of the memorandum, News Review stated, fell into the hands of German secret agents and eventually found its way to Adolf Hitler. On the basis of it, the magazine declared, Hitler decided it would be able successfully to challenge the triple alliance of Great Britain, France and Russia.

News Review stated the memorandum, based on Lindbergh's recent tours of Germany and Russia, was prepared for the United States.

Capitol Never Heard Of Lindy Air Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (INS)—Officials here today expressed ignorance and doubt that Charles A. Lindbergh had made any "confidential" report on the condition of Soviet Russia aircraft, as reported by a London news weekly.

Lindbergh is a colonel in the reserve corps, but officials insisted no such report has ever been received here.

It was pointed out that Lindbergh spent only a brief time recently in Soviet Russia, and officials doubted he would have been given the opportunity of seeing enough of the inside of Soviet air defenses to reach any worth-while conclusions.

He's a Big 'I' and Small Ear Man Now

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (INS)—Philip Shafer, lone wolf campaigner against the pernicious practice of school teachers pulling pupils' ears, had his own ears pinned back today but by a cosmetic surgeon.

Philip Shafer

The 21-year-old Brooklynite, who declares that his ears protruded so much that they gave him an inferiority complex, reacted delightedly as he studied the results of the surgeon's handiwork in the mirror.

"First time since I was a baby that I haven't looked like a bird in flight," he said. "Now I'm going after a job again and this time I'll get one."

It was because he failed to find employment that Philip wrote to boards of education in all the 48 states asking them please to make their teachers stop pulling young sters' ears.

"With ears like I had," he said, "nobody would listen to me. They just laughed."

Research, he said, had proved to him that 50 per cent of elephants ears on adults were due to child hood mistreatings by teachers. Dr. James Switler who performed today's operation backed him up in this.

The surgeon expects a boom in ear-pinning operations among the women now that the new hair style leaves those appendages exposed.

Insurance Men To Hear Curley

By JOHN W. ENGLISH

Members of Industrial Insurance Agents Union of Boston, Local 41, of the United Office & Professional Workers of America, CIO, are looking forward with interest to tomorrow night's meeting in Old South Meeting House when they will be addressed by former Governor James M. Curley and Congressman Joseph E. Casey of Clinton.

[illegible]

Massachusetts' [illegible] are interested in the [illegible] hearings of the special [illegible] commission which is to report [illegible] workmen's compensation [illegible] of existing legislation.

These labor leaders plan to attend the hearings to suggest improvements in the present law.

The first meeting of the commission will be held at the State House Committee for purpose of organization and adoption of a program.

Those who compose the commission are Senator John D. Markey of Quincy, who attended five of the eight bills that will be before the commission; Senator Laurence Curtis of Boston; Representatives Philip Barnet of New Bedford; Charles W. Olson of Ashland; Grover N. Dodge of Essex; James P. Donnelly of Lawrence and Arthur Mahon of Leominster, and Atty. James E. Agnew of Brighton, representing the public; Edward D. Marnock of Quincy, representing employers; and James M. Sullivan, representing labor.

The annual convention of the Massachusetts Building Trades Council to be held in Boston October 29 and 30 is expected to be the most highly attended of any in recent years because of the gains made during the past year not only in membership but in prestige.

Indications are that building operations are going [illegible] to improve. The recent hurricane and flood will have a marked effect in this [illegible].

One of the social features of the convention will be a banquet at Hotel Bradford October 29 to John McDonald of Elevator Constructors Local No. 4 who was recently elected president of the International Union of Elevator Constructors to succeed Frank Feeney of Philadelphia who died a few months ago.

Joan Crawford Seeks 'Ice Follies' Lead

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
(Motion Picture Editor International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5—Joan Crawford wandered onto the "Ice Follies" set at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and was so fascinated watching the skaters do their intricate numbers that she asked Producer Harry Rapf who was starring in the picture.

He explained that the "Ice Follies" were the background of the picture and he hadn't thought much about a star yet. "May I read the script?" Joan asked, and Harry handed it over to her.

Louella O. Parsons

He was surprised and, needless to say, delighted when she telephoned him next day that she loved the story an original by Leonard Praskins, Florence Ryerson and Edgar Allan Woolf, and would like it as her next picture.

Beverly Jane Stillwagon, the little girl whose father and aunt waged a court battle over her similar to the famous Frelle Barthelon.new feud has spiced a movie contract with Charles R. Rogers. Beverly will use the screen name of Linda Ware and make her debut in the first B. grs picture, "Star Maker."

Her start is very similar to Deanna Durbin's story. Rogers introduced Deanna to the fans in her first important movie, "Three Smart Girls and she was brought to him by Jack Stern, who is on the Stillwagon charge manager.

One of the most true stories in Hollywood is that of Conway Tearle, who died so suddenly of heart trouble. Conway at one time was the highest paid character actor in Hollywood. Then suddenly, through one of those strange tides of fortune peculiar to the village he just couldn't get a job. He went to New York and made a great hit in "Counsel At Eight."

He wrote me frequently and was so hopeful that his troubles were over and that he would make a big comeback when the movie version of the hit play was filmed. But when "Counsel At Eight" was filmed Ames another played the role he had created on the stage.

All is forgiven on both sides and Anne Shirley is back on the RKO payroll ready to go to work again after a two-week suspension. Her first picture is to be "The Pure In Mind" in which she will co-star with 14 year old Roger Daniel.

Don't tax your memory trying to place young Roger for he has never appeared on the screen. He's a handsome lad from Glendale California, who was discovered by a studio scout in a school play. Roger is an orphan and has been making his home with his uncle. What a break it is for him to step into a star spot in his first picture.

A line or two: Mickey Rooney couldn't be more elated. William Ludwig who authored "Love Finds Andy Hardy," Mickey's much discussed movie invited him to be best man when he married Susan Ruisenfeld . . . Despite denials it is whispered loudly that Ed Willis, M-G-M art director will wed Mrs. Claire Smith and take her to Europe in November on a honeymoon.

Conja Henie's kid cousin, Marit Henie, a miniature of the skating champ, is being paged to headline an ice show. She's in a London night club now.

Restore 5 P. C. Cut To Carpet Workers

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (AP) — Approximately 6000 employes of the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Company will receive one-half of a 10 per cent wage cut under terms of an arbitration decision announced by the state mediation board.

Arthur S. Myer, appointed to arbitrate wage differences between the company and CIO-affiliated textile workers organizing committee, ruled that half of the cut should be restored to all manufacturing and processing employes in the company's plant at Amsterdam, N. Y. and Thompsonville, Conn.

PLAY 'EM ACROSS THE BOARD—Yes sir, those Ritz boys will not fail you and they prove it in "Straight, Place and Show," their newest mirthquake opening today at the Metropolitan.

Ritz Trio's Hit Comes to Met

The Metropolitan opens its new program today with the irrepressible Ritz Brothers in "Straight, Place and Show," based on the Damon Runyon-Irving Caesar play.

On the romantic side are Richard Arlen, Ethel Merman and Phyllis Brooks. The Ritzes play a trio of down and out racetrack operators thrust into big-time racing when Richard Arlen becomes a thoroughbred on them. The plot bursts up crazily with their having to ride the competing horses in a race so that their own horses will win.

Lew Pollack and Lew Brown have contributed two new songs to the picture, "Why Not String Along With Me" and "When You Go My Merry Way." David Butler directed.

Margaret Lindsay, Marie Wilson and Ann Sheridan, supported by a cast including Cy Kendall, Janet Chapman and John Ireland, are featured in "Broadway Musketeers," a story of three beautiful actresses and their various fortunes. John Farrow directed for Warner Brothers.

"Straight, Place and Show" is expected to surpass the record the last Ritz film made at the Met.

Federal Play Oct. 17

The Federal Theater of Massachusetts, a Works Progress Administration project, which will occupy the Shuberts' Copley Theater this season, tentatively announces October 17 as the opening date for its production of "Haiti."

State Director J. E. Mack hopes to arrange for the Boston presentation to be made by the Federal Theater's New York company, which enjoyed a successful run last season at Harlem's Lafayette Theater with Rex Ingram, Negro actor, as Christophe.

Want to Give This Pup a Home?

Homeless Hector weeps because he's lonely and wants a home and a pal. Here's your chance to win him, young readers, by writing a letter to Dog Editor telling of some good deed you did for another dog or any household pet or dumb animal. The hurricane left Hector alone in the world but with true New England spirit this pup wants to "carry on."

AT LONG LAST!

The Editor Says:

—President Roosevelt's promise of Federal money for dams and reservoirs in the valleys of our principal rivers cheers New England, particularly sections inundated during recent floods.

Immediate start of the work is both advisable and necessary; we cannot afford to risk annual devastation of valuable property by overflowing streams.

Moreover, hundreds of our jobless men need the employment that construction of these projects will provide.

Above all, let us have no more delays due to political rivalries and jealousies. Let us face the important fact that every stone which will go into the building of a dam or reservoir may mean the saving of a human life.

A FULL LIFE and an amazing career ends in Albany, N. Y., with the death at 77 years of the Rev. Michael J. Dwyer, ailing district attorney of Suffolk County in 1909.

Three decades ago as an outstanding member of the bar, a crack newspaper reporter and singer of note, Michael J. Dwyer was known to thousands of Bostonians.

According to material standards he was a success. Wealth and political advancement seemed certain for him. Readily and eagerly, a million men his age would have exchanged places with him.

But Attorney Dwyer was not satisfied; he wanted to do more, to serve better. Consequently he studied for the priesthood, was ordained, became a curate and ultimately a pastor.

When his biography is written—and it should be—an entire chapter ought to be devoted to his strength of character. Not many men have sufficient courage to abandon professional and social security in order to find happiness in another and entirely different field.

THE WORLD SERIES, opening in Chicago, is the day's "big news" not only for those fortunate thousands able "to be present," but also for intensely interested millions listening to and reading about the game in every part of the country.

Every man has his "pet" team. "Gabby" Hartnett being a native son, Mr. Massachusetts is usually a Cubs supporter.

But Mr. New York is almost sure to be a Yanks fan, and his cheers are loud and long. So it goes; everybody picks a "winner."

Such is the widespread and healthy enthusiasm that distinguishes American baseball in a world seething with hatreds and bristling with armaments.

THE COLLEGE OPINION of "jitterbugs" and "swing" music is to be given Boston; Radcliffe and Technology debaters, meeting Thursday, will consider the pros and cons of modern dance tunes.

The views of these young men and women will be interesting, but hardly convincing.

Really to appreciate today's music, one must see and hear it played. This, thousands of New Englanders will surely do when, on Monday, October 24, the famous bands of Rudy Vallee and Benny Goodman play for the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund at Boston Garden.

BOSTON BABIES will go to school if the Mayor and City Council accept Mr. Sidney Rosenberg's proposal.

Specifically, the plan is to reduce the entrance age for kindergarten classes so that four-year-old children may be admitted.

For some reason, not given, the present four and one-half year minimum age is supposed to be too drastic.

Parents generally will not become enthusiastic, as Mr. Rosenberg will learn. Most fathers and mothers still consider the home the more desirable nursery.

A Defense for "Jitterbugs"

By EDWIN C. HILL

FRANZ LEHAR appears to be about the only important musical composer who wasn't tossed out of Vienna, or who didn't make a quick, quiet and expedient getaway with the German absorption of Austria. They still dance to the "Merry Widow Waltz" in Vienna, or did before the Nazis came.

But that's all through and done with now. Germany and Russia, particularly, are putting the cops on the dancers, as they are on the professors, and the baton becomes a nightstick.

REFUGEE composers, coming to America, will find music considerably messed up here too. A friend of this writer from Kansas City tells what seems to be a well-authenticated tale of a Kansas City physician who, as the result of diligent research, has concluded that the rhythm of such dances as the shag, the peepers and the little peach is essentially bayaric.

I know a few swing contortionists and also a few young jitterbug addicts, and I'll swear they are as sane and normal as Charles Evans Hughes.

Under the long stretch of misery, fear and starvation of the Middle Ages Europe began to go haywire. The first crusade brought further disorder to its economy, and multitudes swept eastward to find the ultimate symbol of salvation.

With all this there came strange physiological manifestations in the persons of these bedevilled millions. One of these was a mad tickle-foot excitement, which swept from village to village, and then grew to a mad riga-lion engulfing towns, cities and countryside.

These mystically exalted hordes scourged themselves on this wild dance clear across Europe to fight the Saracens and to find the peace and felicity which their brawling world had failed to give them. Of course, they didn't find anything but a wretched hangover, and many left their bones by the wayside.

BUT THE POINT of this story is mainly in what happened afterward. Here and there among the citizenry were burghers who couldn't dance. Many of these heavy-footed and doubtless unimaginative persons were artisans, farmers or small shop-keepers who merely shook their heads in disapproval as youngsters and oldsters started hoofing and stomping on the highways to Jerusalem.

The more flamboyant in the feudal world found a good excuse for getting off to fight the Saracens, but the sedentary themselves were rid of the cuckoo contingent. They began pulling together the loose ends of their work and business. The artisans were getting some nice orders for armor and equipment from the crusaders.

The guilds and the Hanseatic League began to take shape. When the bedizened nobility and the trackless dancers came back, they faced the end of feudalism.

A relay race was in progress behind the lines, but the baton in the hands of the next runner was met with frustration. There was always a residue of wise sobriety and aspiration. We never altogether go up.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

THE MUSIC of America is now the picture that is sweeping the world and living in the movies.

IT REMINDS me the Rhine valleys and reverberates from the Alpine terraces. We hear it from Capri to Oslo and from Lido to Cannes.

IT PULSATES in Rome, vibrates in Paris and sets the tempo for London foot traffic. But the European orchestras do not quite grasp the musical tremors, for the brasses and the kettles are too raucous and percussive.

THE BIG APPLE never really grabbed Europe by the ears. It managed to crash England in the form of the Lambeth Walk, which is the Big Apple reduced to its component sources.

THE LAMBETH WALK is merely a stroll of a half-wit going about his fractional business. It requires no education, no deep thought and no essence of dancing. It doesn't even require a big ear for music. Furthermore, it doesn't even require a partner. We saw a bird edge into the Lambeth Walk in a London night club and dance all night with nobody. It was the nicest bit of shadow boxing we ever gandered to music.

Figures Do Lie In World Series

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International Copyright and All Other Rights Reserved.

WERE WE STILL a working member of the Base Ball Writers' Association of America, a right little, tight little organization made up of the gentlemen who inform the cash customers on our national pastime, we would feel that we got a nice break on the finish in the National League when the Chicago Cubs sort o' stuck out their tongues to win their pennant in the last jump.

Now the Cubs and the New York Yankees can just go on about their World Series business without any of the preamble that usually goes with the matter, especially that part that falls to the members of the Base Ball Writers' Association of America.

You see, as a rule the pennant races are over in both the big leagues at least a couple of weeks in advance of the closing day of the regular season and then the base ball writers are obliged to compile articles comparing the teams for publication during the period intervening to the opening of the series.

WE HAD EXACTING sports editors in our base ball writing days and they saw to it that we had no idle moments while writing on a series. They would start us comparing the teams player by player, then if there was plenty of time before the Series, they would have us comparing the players by groups, like the outfielders in one group, the infielders in another, and so on.

Finally we would wind up comparing the teams as a whole and then by lumping all our comparisons would tell the customers which team would win the Series, and the curious thing about our method was that no matter what the individual or group comparisons showed our net result was to find the home team the probable winner.

When we think of this labor-saving device of having a team lodge home in the final minutes of a pennant race automatically dispensing with all those articles of comparison by the members of the Base Ball Writers' Association of America, we feel like heaving a big sigh of relief for our former brethren. They can now pick their winner without trying to prove it.

THE only thing is, a few of the boys will be sorely disappointed. They are the fellows who dearly love to dabble in base ball statistics—"Figger Filberts" we used to call them. The period of waiting for a World Series to open is usually a time of rejoicing for them. They then bring out their decimals, and what-not, and have them turning handsprings all over the layout.

We do not know how the figure business is today, but it is a fact that many baseball customers love to get their game in statistical form.

However, we are disclosing no professional secret when we tell you that for the purposes of a short series, the figures are not worth a nickel a barrel, and that goes for the team and individual figures, too.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

QUEER, how Human Nature manages to camouflage its own cussedness and mask its meanness, even from itself, with a flock of halos!

Take, if you dance, these professional domestic martyrs. There Brave, Bright, Bearers Up who sweet smile invariably hides a heart-broken smile even though there's nothing to be heart-broken about!

The don't mind me. I don't matter' clan who always insist on taking the chicken's neck . . . or wearing the castoff clothes . . . or staying home to do the dishes while the rest of the gang go to the movies.

'et them? Of course you have, and probably swallowed their line. But is that line either necessary or sincere? It is not! It's a racket, one of the meanest on earth, whereby disgruntled self-centered natures secure spot lights and achieve pedestals by a show of suffering. Thereby making us ordina. r eggs feel like Heels without half trying!

• • •

AT LAST, goody goody, Hollywood itself, has called their number. And if you want an hour's laugh and the joy of getting hunk, don't miss that martyr exposé, "LOVE HONOR AND OBEY," which Wayne Morris and Irene Dunne are putting over with much gusto.

It starts with the usual line-up. Enter Prunette Wife, brooding blood-hound type divorcee. Unworthy Mate and jailed custody of adoring young son. After which a few lies per diem set to make a mess of the young fellow, despite Dad's strenuous struggles to save him.

For Dad, though a mere worm by Mama's rating, happens to be a real male with a healthy he-mans fighting attitude toward life. But to Boneless Mother, Fighting Attitudes are an abomination. Noble Gestures of renunciation are her specialty.

Years pass. Son has acquired aches of masculine charm and masculine menace . . . but, to the horror of his campus mates, he has also copied Mama's martyr technique to the dot. Suffers' catfish, what can be done about it? Here he is able to grab any honor or suck any chin in sight.

But what happens when the crucial moment strikes? Why, he simply smiles sweetly, makes the Supreme Sacrifice and departs, leaving honors ungrabbed and chins unsocked, while Mama sets her adoring pride for his Gallantry.

• • •

IN VAIN Dad pleads that its seldom if ever necessary to make Supreme Sacrifices, much less go out looking for them.

Mother and Son merely smile with pitying condescension and Go hear Ga'lant Way. Until, at last, a Pert little girl, with a real, sporting creed and a loathing for all phoney acts—proceeds to kidnap Angel Child and show him what a clown he has become, which hurts plenty but ends lovely. Only I DO wish that someone had smacked mama somewhere, somehow.

Which, I repeat, is a perfect example of the way human beings camouflage our cussedness.

If, despite said sense and gumption, we still find ourselves on the spot, we either fight things through . . . or take our lickings in silence. In somebody or other's immortal words PUT UP OR SHUT UP, KID!

NO STREAMLINING AND CHROMIUM FOR RAILROAD HOBBY GROUP
Mrs Cyrus Hosmer Jr., of Belmont Shows Favorite "Iron Horse" Model

Girl About Town by Marguerite Downey

LET RAILROAD magnates take pride in their streamlined engines and modernistic day coaches, but rail enthusiasts want no part of it. They're interested in the return of the Iron Horse . . . or something akin to it, with enough room in every engine cab to accommodate their friends.

This locomotive admiration is no haphazard hobby. Organized in 1933 and chartered two years later, the group holds monthly meetings at Back Bay Station. Members number 450. Most engrossed are the 20 women members.

Between meetings, all collect pictures of old engines, spend Sundays and holidays taking train rides and visiting roundhouses. A sport common to the group is chasing trains and guessing their locomotive numbers. Once you get started, you're no easy to figure a Ford's.

The hobby seem to thrive in this part of the country, with both New England chairman and the national president living in Boston suburbs.

In some families it's practically become a tradition. The Cyrus Hosmers of Concord first became interested. Their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs Cyrus Hosmer, Jr., of Belmont, followed as willing recruits. Last year their daughter, Betty, won a prize naming various parts of an engine. She gets more enjoyment from a pair of well-turned ball bearings, than from a family of ruffled dolls.

HAIR-DRESSERS may work themselves into frenzies of enthusiasm over the new hair-do but it certainly isn't taking with the young set.

Deb Nancy Bertelsen affects it with her strapless white lace frock. Charlotte Rantoul restricts it to evening functions and Eleanor Sullivan wears it only when modelling at the town's swankiest fashion shows.

MANY TOUCHING stories of indomitable spirits could be written of the 270 pupils starting the school year at Perkins Institute for the Blind. Possibly the most amazing would concern Marie, the Royal Navajo Indian girl, who has come all the way from Fort Defiance, Ariz. She was graduated from high school, and won the seminar ship from the American Foundation for the Blind in New York.

She's specializing in office work and already has her job lined up, working among the Indians in her native State.

IF YOU WANT to walk gracefully take up the "jitter" craze, says Esther Lyons of Dorchester, who's been teaching ballroom and tap dancing for 15 years.

There's nothing like constant gyrations of your pedals to strengthen your ankles and prevent that pigeon-toed effect. If such is the case, we'll all be walking with the dignity of Juno after that Goodman-Vallee battle at the Garden on October 24.

I HAVE JUST READ an enlightening article by J. C. Furnas on the dubious art of quitting smoking. Mr. Furnas, an exemplary fellow with sturdy will-power, succeeded in abstaining for six months, he writes, and I am not one to doubt him. He does not promise to quit again, and this I understand. I have been trying to stop smoking for close to 25 years. The first time I took the pledge I remained smokeless for five days.

That was perhaps 20 years ago and I was averaging ten cigarettes a day and a half a dozen pipefuls. When I dropped my pledge into a manhole, I found myself smoking almost 20 cigarettes a day, a cigar or two and six pipes. I have since then sworn off half a dozen times—and the result is that I now average from 80 to 90 cigarettes daily.

HUMORIST John P. Medbury is back in New York after many years of exile on the Coast. He is here for a limited stay—and, quite certain the town is not what it used to be. On his first night here, he was barred at two night clubs. The following evening he disguised himself with dark sunglasses and a white shirt and was welcomed at both places with unctuous cordiality.

"I do not resent the snubs from the doormen—not a whit or a whittle," observed Medbury. "I got me so mad I went home and fumed out 17 gag situations based on snubs by night club doormen. I'll make enough money on those situations to pay my checks in all the night clubs in town that do not bar me. Reminds me of a story about Billy Wilkerson and the Trocadero."

THE PASSING YEARS flirt ever so gently with genial George McManus and appear to leave him as immune to their advances as they do Jiggs, his famed creation of the funnies. At the El Morocco, he perked up when the shuffled into the Lambeth.

"Now that," murmured the cartoonist, "is something for Jiggs. Gentle and pleasant. Up to a day or so ago, I was afraid I'd have to worry him about world war. I don't like Jiggs to fret about international affairs. It doesn't become him."

I AM NOT one to brood over the apparent passing from the Manhattan scene of our flamboyant play boys.

Gone, too—or at least, no longer flaunting themselves, are the wrinkled old Jezebels of wealth and their subsidized young escorts who once kept our cafe society in joyous gossiping fettle. You do notice one thing. The young folk clutter up the swank saloons and drink heavily and noisily. And many of them have acquired the habit of signing tabs in the groggeries where the proprietors are lenient and trusting.

Nancy McNeil Makes Bow Today

By BETTY ALDEN

Only three outs are needed in baseball . . . but the Harold F. McNeils of Chestnut Hill, Evergreen and national pastimers one better . . .

When the busy days of school begin next Monday, it will be right at Friday day . . . yes, we mean just this afternoon . . . the McNeils will have their . . . first innocents who have come out since Boston social season . . .

First, there was Eve, eldest daughter, Doris, who is now Mrs. Francis Keyes of Salisbury, Conn. . . . Then Valerie and Jane made their bow last year, and this afternoon Nancy is making her curtsy to the most attractive bevy of sisters just for tables of tea dots at a tea to be at The Country Club . . . Mrs. Keyes has some name for the occasion so that the new wave for four-poster conferences will be continued . . .

Mrs. McNeil is wearing an attractive gown of black crepe with sheer sleeves in the blouse and back, and a small black hat, as she receives with her daughter before an autumn background of green oak leaves and colorful gladioli . . . The autumn theme is carried out in the table decorations . . . with each one's quota of gladioli in the glass bowls presenting a different hue, ranging from palest pink to deep wine shades . . .

Nancy is stepping into the social spotlight in a gown of the new teal blue piped with silver, and her hat is a small French model clouded with a dubonnet veil . . . the same becoming shade of red is carried out in her slippers and pocketbook . . . Ellen Muir, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Muir of New York, has come on from Gotham to help celebrate her former roommate's debut . . . while among the Boston debs at the party are Faith Kidder, Dorothy Comstock, Lydia Cobb, Anstiss Dana, Alice Hollister, Merrill Bunce, Celia Hubbard, Joanna Hoyt and Mary Jane Allen . . .

Fur Fashion Show Attracts Many

THE MANY, MANY PLANS being made for the coming Harvard-Princeton football week-end have caused our spectator-sports-minded misses to practice up on wearing their smart fall outfits . . . Yesterday afternoon, Leila Ernst and Janet Pierce, two of the season's most attractive blonde debs, got in a little pre-game practicing by modelling furs in the fashion show at the Ritz Carlton . . .

Janet modelled one evening costume designed to capture the fancy of even the most hard-hearted stag line . . . a cerise taffeta gown and short ermine jacket which were a perfect foil for her soft, blonde hair and pink cheeks . . . Leila made a pretty picture as she strolled past the tables of luncheers in a swagger opossum coat with natty accessories . . . the perfect football game and tea dance costume . . . Later, she joined a group of her sister debs, who were in the throng of spectators, had a spot of lunch with them and then hustled off to Polly Harwood's coming-out party at the Cambridge Boat Club . . .

Gini Stingley and "Babe" Madden eyed the fashions with delight and others on hand in the long, blue and silver room were, Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, for whom the fashions and luncheon provided a short relaxation from her many duties at the Charlotte Cushman Club . . . She made a twosome with Mrs. Charles Sises of Dedham . . .

Though Barbara Bremer arrived a bit late, Chris provided a table in the crowded dining room where she and her companion had a perfect view of the fashions and spectators as well . . . Mrs. John Blythe lunched with several friends and Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. Stedman Hanks, Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons, Dorothy Pierce and Polly Keppler were others enjoying the show of sumptuous and costly furs.

Club Guests

Dedham Socialite On Vacation

BOSTONIANS vacationing in Gotham usually include a visit to the Rainbow Room at Rockefeller Center in their round of the New York night clubs and Anne Soule and Lockwood Tower, who were photographed there recently are no exception. Miss Soule is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Soule of Dedham and Mr. Tower, a Harvard '31 graduate, lives in Lexington. He is a member of The Country Club in Brookline.

Trinity Grads To Attend Benefit

Many Dinner Parties Planned

WITH numerous dinner parties scheduled and many gay buffet suppers planned for late in the evening, the Boston Chapter of Trinity College benefit performance of "Shadow and Substance," a week from Tuesday evening, will be one of the highlights of the early autumn calendar.

The event is taking place under the direction of Mrs. A. Charles Kallan of Newton, general chairman, and Ruth Clark Cox of West Roxbury, chapter president.

The Joseph P. Mannings will entertain at a large family dinner. Among their guests will be their three daughters, Mrs. John Griffin, Miss Ethel Conry and Miss John Cunningham.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Lyons have also made reservations for the performance along with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Martin, William Gleason, Catherine Cunningham and Marie Mutrie.

Others who'll be in the audience are Mr. and Mrs. Russell F. Riley, Mary Walsh, Mary and Eleanor Hickey, Antonia McInnis, Teresa Callahan, Eleanor M. Shea Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kelly.

Katherine Erwin Plans Wedding

Sacred Heart Church in Weymouth will be the scene of one of the season's most attractive weddings when Katherine Erwin of Braintree becomes the bride of Marlin Canavan on Columbus Day.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her brother, Walter Erwin, and will have her sister, Mrs. Charles Crowley of Concord, N. H., as her matron of honor. Serving as bridesmaids will be Mary Holbran of Gloucester and Anna Murphy of Milton.

John Canavan will be his brother's best man. Reception will be at the Toll House in Whitman.

WINTHROP RECEPTION

The Winthrop Women's Catholic Club is busy with plans for guest night, Monday, at St. John's Hall. It will be a reception to officers.

Fetes Honor Miss Plimpton

With plans for their marriage on Saturday practically complete, Frederica Plimpton and Davis Clapp Drinkwater are the center of a miniature social whirl this week.

The week's festivities started off with the dinner party given by Mary Hastings at her parents' home in Hingham.

Among the guests were the bride's cousin, Reinette Plimpton; Helen Read of New York, Mrs. William W. Paxton, sister of the bride, and Mary Bingham of West Newton, all bridesmaids.

Others present included the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. William Ball Rice and Mrs. Edward G. Pinkerton, both of Hingham.

Makes Debut Saturday

Miss Priscilla Marjorie Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Everts Freeman of Longwood avenue, Brookline, recently returned from a summer vacation in Europe and will make her debut Saturday. The party will be a luncheon, given by her parents at Longwood Towers in Brookline.

Miss Freeman is a graduate of Rogers Hall School, and is a student at the Erskine School this winter. Among out-of-town guests at her party will be Peggy Bradley and Mary Langdon.

Lippitts Close Beverly Estate

The shutters are being fastened on the summer estate of Mrs. Henry F. Lippitt in Beverly Farms today, following Mrs. Lippitt's return to Providence to spend the winter. Her daughter, Mary Anne, accompanies her to Providence. Her son, Frederick Lippitt, has returned to Yale.

Jamaica Plain Group Holds Bridge

Massachusetts Catholic Women's Guild of Jamaica Plain launches its season tomorrow night with a whist and bridge in St. Thomas School in Jamaica Plain. The St. Thomas Aquinas Circle is sponsoring the event under leadership of Margaret Ryan. Emma Duggan, regent of the group, heads the reception committee.

Cornish Pasties Is International Favorite

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX—11:30 A. M.

A friendly reader has criticized our recently published recipe for Cornish Pasties. She states that she was born and bred in Cornwall, England.

We can understand that feeling. It is akin to cut own feelings when we read the majority of recipes for fried chicken.

This column always welcomes friendly criticism, suggestions and ideas. We are thirsty for more knowledge on the subject of food at all times. We've been delving about for more information about Cornish Pasties seeking to learn the exact combination of ingredients and seasonings used in Cornwall.

The Countess Morphy, author of this difference in her "Recipes of All Nations." Here is her recipe for Cornish Pasties:

CORNISH PASTIES

"The pastry for these famous pasties is made as directed for the ordinary pastry with the exception that a little more fat is used. It is of great importance that the ingredients of baking powder and a pinch of salt have been added with the flour. Sufficient water to make a stiff paste should not be used, but only enough to bind the dough together. The dough is then rolled out and divided into seven equal parts and one half of each square placed in the center of the next one. Fold the other half of the dough over and pinch down the edges, leaving them a little wide. Have in readiness a pan of hot water and dip the pasties in it before putting them into the oven. This makes the dough rise and gives them a nice glaze.

"The pasties are filled with 1 lb. of uncooked beef cut up small, 1 lb. of uncooked pork cut into very small dice, 1 small onion finely chopped, the whole being well seasoned with salt and pepper. This is the usual version, but I have seen one from Cornwall in which uncooked calves' liver is mixed with the beef, and a turnip and carrot are also added to the potato.

"The appearance of the pasties is greatly improved by brushing them over with beaten yolk of egg 20 minutes or so after they have been in the oven."

Surely this pastries problem cannot be another instance such as Lot plotted cream from De-pendable A. are agreed that none elsewhere ever seems to have the same flavor in spite of the fact that it is comparatively easy to make.

The next recipe for Canadian Tea Scuff has been requested. The ones used are white rather than spud ones and resemble an apple pan dean in appearance. We agree that a few of this sort of pan scuff is good eating these days.

CANADIAN PEA SOUP

2 cups white peas
2 quarts cold water
2 tablespoons butter
1 onion
1 stalk celery
Salt
Pepper

Soak peas over night in water to which baking soda has been added. In the morning put peas in fresh water. Add salt pork, onions, and pepper. Simmer for 4 to 5 hours.

We may just as well make this column international and reply to the request for Linnet Tarts.

NORWEGIAN LINSER TARTS

DOUGH

2¼ cups flour
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon butter
FILLING
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cups scalded top milk
Vanilla

Combine egg yolks, sugar and flour for filling in top of double boiler, beat for about 2 minutes, then add the hot milk gradually. Cook and beat until the mixture is smooth and thickened. Remove from fire and continue to beat until partially cooled, then add vanilla.

Combine ingredients for dough and line small fluted tart tins with a fairly thick coating of the rolled dough. It will be necessary to flour fingers well when handling dough. Fill lined tins with the custard and cover with a piece of dough cut to fit the top. Press the edges together. Set on a baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for about 15 minutes. Cool slightly, then unmold and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

THESE are the days . . . and nights . . . when exciting things are happening all over town . . . from play openings to house-warmings of the October migrants. For the girl who's in town all day long, with festivities scheduled after five, there's nothing quite like this little black crepe with a long-sleeved bolero buttoned onto a gold metal gilet. Conservative enough for business, the frock becomes a smart short sleeved dinner affair without the jacket. Tolerance Helpful In Successful Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When it comes to marriage a good many of us have a st[ill] intolerant bidden at our hearts. The old has been so inherited [by] us a good many things [that] it can't help it wife or husband or wife a [mi]stake.

The wise man or the a[dult] to tolerate another's [point] of view [and] whether [it] [agree] with it or not.

[In] these days of [quick] divorce, [when] the [slightest] [excuse] for [separation] [seems] to be [grasped] at, [it] [would] be [well] if [more] people [would] [learn] the [lesson] of [tolerance].

Parents object to sons and daughters marrying beyond the geographical boundaries from which they hail. The persons to whom these parents object so bitterly may come from countries which have achieved [prominence] in science and the arts, but they are "foreigners."

[The] writer recently attended a luncheon given to Jacqueline Cochran who [owns] the Beauty Preps. Besides being a record-breaking flier, she runs a cosmetic laboratory in New Jersey and has a chain of beauty parlors. The ladies at the luncheon seemed more interested in cosmetics than they did in her great cross country flight.

What color fingernail polish did she prefer asked attractive young things whose tools suggested the slaughter of oxen. Miss Cochran announced she didn't use fingernail dye of any shade. After a few "whys" the amazed horror was reflected on nearly every face. Tolerance?

Easy Squares

Use string and you'll quickly have enough of these 4½ inch squares to make a scarf.

When joined it looks like two squares.

Pattern 1825 contains directions for making square; materials required, illustration of square and of stitches; photograph of square.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Stimulation Cream Rouses Sluggish Complexions

By ARLINE GOULD

IF NOTHING outside of a walk in the teeth of an Arctic blizzard ever gives your face a [glow] . . . as [the] girls who've been called "[rosy-cheeked]" . . . [see] what a certain stimulation cream can do for you.

This is a rarity among [creams]. Not too many people know about it. Ordinarily it might even be prohibitive as to price because it is the [kind] in a jar.

But for about [ten] cents [you] can [buy] in a [drug] store [what] you [pay] for in a [dress] are all of the [same] [ingredients] as in the de luxe [cream].

It looks like a [pretty] [frosting], has an [odor] [reminiscent] of [spring] [flowers] and stimulates [circulation] [with] the result that a [fresh] [vitality] [glows] and [beauty] [must] [be] [pretty] [well] [hidden] [to] [show] [through] [it].

It [loosens] the [beauty] [aids] [which] [have] [clogged] [pores] so that [blackheads] [appear] [as] [deep-rooted] [protrusions] [are] [easily] [removed] after [softening].

You can just [imagine] [what] [a] [cream] [with] the power to [stimulate] and [refresh] [is] a [marvel] [for] [those] [days] when your skin [must] [look] [its] [best] but just doesn't [seem] to [be] able. [Five] minutes is quite enough [to] [massage] it the speediest [way] of [all]. Then on with [your] [powder] and astringent and a [glow] [to] [envy].

To learn about the [acquisition] of this special on this [wonderful] cream and other de luxe [creams] in the same line for one dollar, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 1000, week-days until five or write [her] at the Boston American, [enclosing] a stamped, self-addressed [envelope].

TREAT BOW LEGS EARLY

[Parents] [who] [notice] [that] [their] [children's] [legs] [are] [bowing] [should] [consult] [a] [physician] [at] [once]. [Treatment] [is] [most] [effective] [when] [begun] [early].

Phil Payne Killed On Rome Flight

CHAPTER 42

Nobody was particularly excited one day in May, 1927, when we heard that a tall gangling flier with a Scandinavian name was tuning up a monoplane christened the "Spirit of St. Louis" on a Long Island flying field and threatening to take off on a solo hop for Paris.

Nobody that is, except Payne. He stormed at us for our apathy. His imagination saw the first solo trans-Atlantic flight as a fait accompli from the very first.

When it seemed this mad enterprise was on the level and not a publicity stunt that was all conversation and no flying, we began to warm up too. And when Lindbergh made it, our excitement matched Payne's.

Soon Clarence Chamberlin took off for Germany with his dark-visaged passenger, Charles Levine, whom he christened "The Flying Junkman" in a somewhat sarcastic genuflection toward the source of his wealth. And then the sky lane over the Great Circle between the American continent and Europe began to be fared with trans-Atlantic hoppers and the waters of the Atlantic to be darkened with the impenetrable mystery of those who dared greatly and were lost forevermore in unmarked, watery graves.

It was Phil Payne who conceived the idea of the first New York to Rome flight. Payne who would never send a man on a story he wasn't willing to cover himself; Payne who took a chance he'd not permit one of his reporters to take.

A genuinely sad and heartsick crowd gathered mournfully on the field and saw Payne climb into "Old Glory", a crowd which tried hard to be cheerful and failed miserably.

The great plane roared down the runway and all of us there were crying unashamedly, seeing Phil's round face, big glasses and thick glasses through a mist of tears.

"Old Glory" wobbled and wavered struggling to rise against the handicap of her great load of gas. She went up, whoopsy-then more easily, and soon was out of sight. And Phil was gone.

DEATH INTERVENES

We hung over tickers and radios and telephones, and when "Old Glory" passed Newfoundland some of us breathed more easily. Then came an S O S crackling doom. Another. And then silence. Silence which was never broken.

The tossing restless sea off the Newfoundland banks opened to receive Payne and his two flying companions. And all of us who worked for him and loved him knew we had lost a friend and journalism a great genius. About this time I moved to the News.

Able chroniclers of the current scene have commented on the hysterical character of the Jazz twenties. The second half of that mad decade which I knew in New York was worse than the first for by now prohibition, in theory, was a well-established fact; in practice it was a joke because the collective previously independent mind of America had found its remedy a wave to hear the law and get a drink.

Out of the desire to run the "wide open" game with a title, was a lot of crime and mad doings that there was an embarrassement of riches in news stories day after day.

During one of the hottest summers on record, I lived for weeks in Columbus, O., covering the most revolting murder trial in all my experience. This was the trial of Veterinary Professor James H. Snook for killing Theora Hix, a brilliant co-ed in the medical school of Ohio State University.

The day Snook testified in his own behalf I was writing three stories at once—the broad outlines of a feature story to be filled in and put on the wire later; a running news story which was snatched out of my hand to the wire room, adjoining the courtroom, as fast as I could dash it off in longhand; and straight Q. and A. copy.

The temperature was above 100 in the room; the door opening to the corridor admitted no air because it was choked with curious humanity pressing in from the queues winding far down the halls on either side. Some morbid ones had even set up ladders in the halls and were perched on them.

At one point the testimony was so obscene that reporters put down their pencils. There was no point in carrying on. The wiremen couldn't send it. A telegrapher poked his head out to learn why copy wasn't flowing through regularly. Soon they all emerged from their cubicle to listen. The ticketty-tick tick-tick of the Morse code was silenced for so long that city desks at distant points—New York, Cleveland, elsewhere—noting from their own wire rooms that copy wasn't running, began quizzing the courthouse telegraphers.

"Too hot to send. Will pick up when it cools off," went the explanation.

Back from Ohio, I began shuttling between New York and Washington. My best story from the capital was a direct assignment from Mr. Joseph Medill Patterson, publisher of the News.

A SOCIAL BATTLE

I went to Washington for the express purpose of crashing the "best" dinner at which Miss Edward Everett Gann, half sister of Vice-President Curtis, was expected to win the first round in her fight with Alice Roosevelt Longworth and her following over social precedence in the White House and diplomatic set.

Dolly Gann, as Charley Curtis' official hostess, had insisted on top place at diplomatic dinners. Alice Longworth has always been a stickler for the prerogatives of Washington aristocracy. A brilliant and popular woman with a mordant wit, she had challenged the Kansas woman's precedence. The girls went to it without gloves and no holds barred.

The situation horrified the "cliff dwellers," snobs, sacred cows and stiff-shirted formality fronters of the capital; caused the diplomatic corps to shudder delicately; the protocol division of the State Department to have the jitters. But it amused the entire country which does not take itself as seriously as Washington, and it was God's gift to city editors.

I got my orders late in the afternoon of the day preceding the dinner. There was no questioning this assignment, no falling back on the excuse that it was impossible. In newspaper work one soon learns that nothing is impossible. Anybody whose back is too weak to break down doors marked "no entrance" and whose brains are not ingenious enough to make the impossible assignment a commonplace task, doesn't belong in the business and doesn't stay in it long.

Mr. Patterson's news sense told him the value of this story to his readers. We had to have it. Curtis and his half-sister, as well as her lawyer husband, were simple, friendly people, intensely human. Neither Curtis nor Dolly had been reared in that hothouse atmosphere of snobbery where a kind word to a servant was in bad taste.

After Hennings's lugubrious and doleful predictions that I'd have plenty of trouble getting to the dinner, I telephoned a couple of pals in Washington. They were equally unhelpful and pessimistic. So I went home, packed and took a train to Washington.

In the morning I went to see Vice-President Curtis myself and explained my predicament. He was as courteous as anyone could be and started telephoning around at once to help me. But short of giving me his own invitation, which was impossible, he could do nothing.

Japan and Its People

By F. W. KELLOGG

Retired Newspaper Publisher and World Traveler

The visit of Commodore Perry and the resultant treaties with the United States, Russia, England, and Holland had turned the Japanese people from an attitude of suspicion and hostility toward "barbarians," as they termed the white races, to one of increased friendship.

In 1894, the Japanese nation practically destroyed the Chinese pirates and bandits that infested the Formosan Islands by their war with China.

In the peace of 1895 made by China with Japan they ceded Formosa Islands and the Liotung peninsula to Japan, and agreed to the independence of Korea.

The consequence of this war demonstrated the weakness of China, and the European powers came swooping down upon China for concessions. As a result, anti-foreign feeling ran high in China, and the hatred of Japan became a fixed and permanent policy of the country.

CITES BOXER WAR

In 1899, the Boxer rebellion occurred. The trouble began in Shantung province, which was part of the Liotung peninsula, and all of the foreign nations were besieged in the legation city outside the walls of Peking.

They were on the point of complete annihilation when the Japanese army marched in and defeated the Chinese Boxers, who had been aided and abetted by the Chinese government soldiers.

The Japanese undertook the defense of the white races because of their being a neighboring country to China. Japan felt the attack on all the white races was a disgrace even to China as well as to Korea and Japan.

The saving of the white races by the Japanese army intensified the esteem in which the white races were held by Japan, but the attitude of Russia toward Japan was so menacing that the Anglo-Japanese alliance was made in 1902.

In 1904, the Japanese decisively defeated the Russians in a short war much to the astonishment of the world. Russian soldiers were defeated in the battle of Mukden while the Russian navy was totally destroyed by the Japanese navy and by Admiral Togo.

President Theodore Roosevelt then approached the two warring nations and practically dictated the peace terms which were largely carried out along the lines suggested by him at the peace conference held at Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

FORT DESTROYED

The war between Japan and Russia had really been precipitated by Russia securing from the Chinese government a lease on Manchuria which was practically perpetual, and permitted and practically compelled them to build the trans-Siberia railroad through Manchuria to the capital of Korea and also to Port Arthur, where the Russians constructed one of the most impregnable fortresses in the world.

There could be no question regarding Russia's warlike aims against Japan.

Under the terms of the Portsmouth treaty, fortifications at Port Arthur were destroyed and the Island of Saghalien was divided between Russia and Japan, Siberia retaining the upper one-half of this island and Japan acquiring the lower one-half of Saghalien.

President Roosevelt recommended and practically compelled the Japanese nation to abandon any cash indemnity, but upon his insistence it was agreed in the treaty of Portsmouth that Japan was to take charge of the trans-Siberian railroad, and take over the Manchurian leasehold under which all privileges held by Russia would be acquired by Japan and all obligations assumed by Russia would be carried out by Japan and all obligations assumed by Russia would be carried out by Japan.

It was also stipulated and agreed that Japan would have the protectorate of Korea and administer the affairs of that country. The trans-Siberian railroad ended at Seoul, the capital of Korea.

Korea was a country which had existed for more than 2000 years, and both Korea and China from the Sixth Century had contributed much to the artistic development and to the Oriental civilization of Japan.

Boston After Dark

OFF KEY NOTES: You enliven a column like this occasionally by forgetting names but printing facts . . . For instance: A tremendous scandal, involving (larcenously) scions of a few first families, has shocked the South Shore . . .

GEORGE HOLLAND

A prominent Massachusetts solon danced in his stocking-feet at one of the night-clubs last night . . . (The Ritz Brothers tried the same stunt at the Waldorf recently in New York, and their shoes were stolen . . . They danced to the Lambeth Walk) The legislator last night danced to the strings of his heart, which were vibrating with joy because of the McMasters withdrawal from the gubernatorial race . . . If his party wins, he expects to be a commissioner.

In one of our state penal institutions, a condition of enforced labor exists which has the prisoners crying for mercy, insiders aver . . . A "floating crap game"—not many miles from Boston—was raided the other evening. The proprietor should know that a gentleman who had been "taken" a night or two before the raid, tipped the Timiltymen. The sucker thought the game had a "gimmick," fancying that a magnet was in operation . . .

There is a plot by "honest" race-horse owners to frame the canny "Mr. S.," who has become a legendary character because of his ability to play the game "both ends to the middle," i.e., as a bettor and a backer . . . No New England track is involved . . .

Exclusive:

Sally Rand and the management (Lou Walters) of the Towne Club were exchanging telegrams today . . . The Towne Club has made Sally and her fans and bubbles an offer to fly here from Pennsylvania to participate in the club's premiere tomorrow night.

Once Over Lightly:

Luther Grimes, manager of the Hotel Somerset, will hire a singer to accompany herself between sets of Harry Marshard's orchestra at the Bunnese Room . . . If the right girl comes along, she can open tomorrow night . . . Joe Rines will be the maestro of Harry Richman's new supper-club at Hotel Delmonico, New York, November 20 . . . But Maestro Rines will play the Mayfair two weeks before his opening . . . Lewis Bonick and his orchestra will proceed to tour New England preparatory to holding down the bandstand of the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel, Miami Beach . . .

If Ranny Weeks doesn't find himself the leader of the orchestra formerly directed by Jack Marshard at the recent engagement at the Hotel Plaza's Persian Room, Manhattan, this column will miss another guess . . . Tony Brando forsook his role of co-proprietor last night at the Brown Derby, to play the accordion briefly in Don Rico's continental ensemble . . . Austen Lake, the first-flight sports-columnist, left for the World Series in Chicago last night, determined to do his best for a "constant reader" who requested two good seats —charged to the Lake account.

The late Eddie Hurley was one of the few sportswriters who predicted that the Cubs and Yankees would fight it out in the World Series . . . Esther Lyons, the Dorchester dancing teacher, relates that a mother of one of her pupils enrolled the youngsters with this remark: "Please do your best for her. She is backward in putting herself forward."

Presence of numerous silver dollars in the Boston exchange does not indicate the discovery of bonanza. American Airlines distributed $20 each to more than 100 employes who worked valiantly to speed traffic in the wake of the hurricane . . .

Actors in the cast of "What A Life," at the Wilbur, say that Stacia Wilson, who is said to be a Greater Boston girl, has talent which will make her famous ultimately in the theater. She plays a bit in the Abbot show . . .

Adelin Rushnell, whom Boston remembers fondly as leading lady of the old St. James Stock Company, is directing "Case History," a drama due to open at New York's Lyceum Theater, October 21.

Two ambitious band booking organizations have sprung up in Boston . . . The Marshard brothers control one, and Edward H. Liner has another . . . Liner booked Dick Stutz into the Brown Derby, and manages Billy Lossez and a girl leader named Martha Burke, who heads a male organization . . . When they tell Frances M. Keyes, one of the stewardesses on American Airlines (Boston to Newark) that she ought to be in pictures—the boys are not far from the truth . . .

The new Hofbrau, Tremont street, has won quick favor . . . The restaurant features Bavarian entertainment, but Frits Scheer, the proprietor, declares that his workers—the singers double as waiters, check-girls and bar-maids—are all American citizens . . . Scheer himself acts as master of ceremonies . . . Hans Oehme leads a good band . . . Some excellent singers work at the Hofbrau . . . Alex Olden, a Viennese tenor, and Kurt Laut, a lyric baritone, both had opera experience on the other side . . . Mary and Elmhold Klein sing duets . . .

The Municipal Clerks' Association will make merry October 24 at the Copley-Plaza, and Bob Hardy will beg off for the night from the Bermuda Room to play for the city-workers annual ball . . .

MARKETS BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN COMMENT

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1938 27

New Figuring Form Truthful

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 — The new short form of accounting, which presents in simple form the significant totality results of business activities, has repercussions beyond those commonly appreciated.

The reclassification of accounts does not merely put employes and stockholders a lot closer to the problems of a business to profit from it.

The presentation of a consolidated statement is an answer to the Marxian critics of free enterprise, who confuse the issue with their own phrases.

Moreover, through the consolidation of the accounts of all corporations, it is possible to get an authentic candid camera picture of the economic life of the American people.

Such bookkeeping, which photographs the sum total of all transactions, constitutes a factual answer toward inquiries about monopoly and big business.

It is a double edged tool, which in collective bargaining can be helpful to intelligent union leaders as well as to management. Bargaining can be productive of permanent benefits only if its seats on a secure foundation of factual knowledge. The phenomenal success of Edward F. McGrady as chief mediator of the Department of Labor depended mainly on his capacity fully to inform himself of the facts surrounding individual labor disputes.

A business magazine has additionally tried to suggest what a consolidated short form statement of all corporations would look like. This effort of course is merely tentative; but it could readily be accomplished if the Treasury would cooperate, for in the reports of more than 500,000 corporations to the Internal Revenue Bureau the factual material is available and needs only to be reclassified.

In the suggested consolidated statement, the element of return to labor is understated, because under wages and salaries are included only those paid out by individual corporations to their own employes. The greater wage item is hidden in the item of "materials and services purchased from others." In a consolidated picture, these inter-company items should be eliminated, and the truth, as revealed in the Brookings studies, namely, that 85 per cent of the national income goes to workers (those in gainful occupations), should be vividly presented.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company is contributing notably to public understanding through presenting a summary of its operations for a nine year period. Nearly half of the company's gross intake was paid out directly in the form of wages and salaries. The company properly sets out the item for group insurance premiums and payments to the employe annuity forms. This item really should be added to wages and salaries, but it is well to state it separately. The owners, or stockholders, received only 5.2 per cent of the intake. The company would do well to relate this to percentage earnings on the total investment by stockholders in tools.

Haney Sees Bank Condition Recovery Omen

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK Oct. 5 — Although the bank statistics have been changed in form, they show sufficient similarity to conditions in 1922 to suggest that a cyclical business recovery is trying to get started.

Of course, as will appear below the function of the banks has been much affected by government operating policies; but even so, this similarity remains.

Loans have failed to a very low level but the decline in checked [illegible] appears [illegible] loans are likely [illegible] a [illegible] level.

Net reserves (the banks' excess reserves over legal requirements) will increase [illegible] when the [illegible] of the reserve banks [illegible] on sharply, and are [illegible] high.

It can be added that, as in 1922, the "bank debits" (volume of checked cash) have turned up after a long decline, but show much irregularity.

All this, is in the usual order of business cycles, and to that extent is reassuring. It is bolish information of considerable significance.

* * *

But there are also important differences in the comparison with 1922, and some of these throw much light on what is going on in the land of the free and the home of the brave. Perhaps the difference in the level of bank deposits is the outstanding one.

Not only are demand deposits now over 60 per cent larger than in the earlier period; they are also completely and entirely out of relation to the banks' loans. It is the latter point which is most directly significant.

It shows us that bank deposits now have very little to do with business. Only a small part of demand deposits are "derivative;" that is, derived from business loans. Loans are not far from the record LOW, while deposits are close to the record HIGH. During the past twelve months, commercial loans fell about 850 million dollars, while deposits rose about 640 million dollars. Last week this trend continued.

Industrial Tax Burden Heavy

Taxes in industrial corporations in 1937 equaled 53 per cent of corporate net income after taxes according to a report issued today by the National Association of Cost Accountants.

In this report based on data supplied by treasurers, controllers and accountants, associated with 717 industrial corporations, it is pointed out that, while the total tax revenue of federal, state and local governments in 1937 amounted to over one-fifth of national income for that year, the tax burden on industrial companies was even greater, amounting in 1937 to one-third of corporate income before the taxes were deducted.

Good News

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (INS)—N. Y. Central Railroad has placed a $2,000,000 order for rail and track accessories, it was announced today. The order is being shared by Bethlehem Steel, Carnegie-Illinois Steel, Inland Steel and Algoma Steel Corporation.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5 (AP)— Idle since last November, the largest blast furnace in the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation's Edgar Thomson works in Braddock, will resume operations this week. The "D" furnace is the first to go into operation since April.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (INS)— Principal subsidiaries of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. gained 83,500 telephones in use in September it was announced today. In September, 1937, 99,460 phones were gained.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 5 (INS)—General Electric Co. stockholders on Sept. 23 totalled 208,805 persons against 197,104 on Sept. 23, 1937, it was announced today.

Deficit Stirs Inflation Fears Anew

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Inflation fears are [illegible]. And, one might legitimately [illegible] not with the first quarter of the government fiscal year showing a deficit of $70,983,352.

The excess of federal expenditures over federal income for the first three months of the new fiscal year began on July 1 was about 2½ times as great as that in the similar period a year ago.

Some of the increase can be logically laid at the door of decreased receipts. But not the entire story since income dropped only $150,000,000.

As a nation we continue to live beyond our means. Much can be said of the need for certain expenditures, but we are confronted with unyielding financial and economic facts and representatives of social necessity.

ROAD TO INFLATION

And the conclusion is inescapable that while the road may not far into the future it leads to ultimate unbridled inflation. Just how we should concern ourselves with the effects on high prices, particularly government bond prices.

It is our opinion that with recovery strengthening, and with banks in a position to continue the deficit financing of government, prices should be maintained.

If, as and when treasury obligations weaken in the next year the causes will probably be found in other directions. The demand of industry for new money, an increased call for loans by private enterprise and higher commodity prices, to name a few possibilities.

But for the present, fortunately for the spenders, who must borrow, the price structure looks firm enough.

* * *

Technicians face one of those troublesome barriers that is figuratively tipped with barbed wire. And before they make the jump they will probably do a bit of pondering. The question is whether or not the market is going to move sidewise or not in lieu of a reaction. It is certainly entitled to the latter, but it does not necessarily do what it should at times.

Frankly we don't see how it is anything but a guess at this time. One day such as Tuesday does not make even a sidewise trend. Far better to let prices write their own decision. If it is to be sidewise it is easy enough to step in after a week or so.

Cubs Alumni Glower As Series Begins

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.

THREE MANAGERIAL ALUMNI OF the Cubs, all sore at each other and still sorer at their alma mammy, sat or stood inside Wrigley field today as a belt of howling humanity yelled for an end to Yankee domination in the World Series.

AUSTEN LAKE

The first was Joe McCarthy, current manager of the Yankees, who lost his job in the late summer of 1930. The second was Rogers Hornsby, who got fired in midseason of 1932. And the third was Charlie Grimm, who was given a crock of hemlock on July 28 of this year.

Joe, in his time, blamed Hornsby for undermining him, and Hornsby blasphemed Charlie for giving him the go-behind toe-hold. But Charlie, who sat today before a little knickled spindle in the upper reaches of the press coop and watched the scene, blamed nobody — not out loud. But privately he was burning up.

[illegible] felt [illegible] from [illegible] mainly fro[illegible]

1932 History Repeats

[illegible] And oddly, that autumn, when the Cubs [illegible] just as they smoked [illegible]

[illegible] for those generously [illegible] Series [illegible] the memo[illegible] connection to Babe Ruth, was an [illegible] play on Cub covetousness.

After taking two strikes and listening to derisive yells from the Cub infielders, Babe pointed to the outfield stands and said, "This one's Hornsby's cut." It was.

The ball which Babe propelled on a straight line for the indicated spot cost each Cub the difference between the winner's and loser's share, or about $2000.

McCarthy Still Smoulders

NOR HAS McCARTHY FORGOTTEN his private vendetta for what he considers a [illegible] professional record. He told me recently that he has not [illegible] feeling of humility occasioned by that 1930 September [illegible] when he was called out of bed at Boston's Hotel Somerset and told, by proxy, that the late Bill Wrigley had fired him.

"He didn't give me the consideration to tell me first," said McCarthy, "The news was released to the press services."

Bill Wrigley is dead these three years, but McCarthy, like the Southern [illegible] carries his wrangle to the next generation. It seems [illegible] but [illegible] like women and elephants. He never forgets.

"Hope we make it another four straight," he said in the press room of the Congress, the old Rococo Hotel on Michigan avenue which is series headquarters and thronged baseball's society.

[illegible] won three previous World Series in four [illegible] Pittsburgh, '24 against the Cardinals, '32 against the Cubs. Last year against the Giants they missed by one game, the third in which Carl Hubbell beat Bump Hadley, 7 to 3.

Fog Shovelling

BUT THESE CUBS AREN'T GAITED like the Giants of the last two years—not with men like Hartnett, Ripper Collins, Bill Lee, Clay Bryant, Charlie Root, Dizzy Dean and Bill Herman in their lineup.

O[illegible] they don't figure to win, but they do figure to give the Yankees a better fight than the Pirates would. Indeed there is a good deal of short end money being reported around the Congress lobby and the other shore front hotels, where odds are dwindling from 12 to 5 and last quoted at 2 to 1.

For one thing the Cubs are "hot." Like the despised 1914 Braves who entered their series against the redoubtable Athletics on a 1 to 2 shortend and won in four straight, the Cubs may make up in inspiration what they lack in balance and batting power.

Insane thought? Perhaps. All pre-series forecasts in these autumnal get-together are insane.

[illegible] the lack of support [illegible] balls over a [illegible] Cubs [illegible] opportunity is figured to make the Yankees [illegible] wrapped up in [illegible] Ruffing, Hadley, Gordon and Gehrig is enough to frizz the [illegible] League pitcher a potential home run in every [illegible]

[illegible] fog-shovelling of the experts amounts to [illegible] and unforeseen [illegible] to the [illegible] upset the best figure fiddling.

[illegible] of previous World Series is rich in such tragi-heroic epics [illegible] have been unexpected athletes like Pepper Martin in '31, [illegible] and Jose Powell in '36. The unpredictability of these [illegible] classic.

After saying which, I pick the Yankees to win, four games to two.

Cubs Reflect 'Windy City'

Plenty of Hustle by Chicagoans, Says Corum

By BILL CORUM

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (INS)—Same old Chicago. You can count on the gang but not the weather.

I always have had a hunch Ruppert's, pasty exit of only a few days before the Series opened, left the Cub club has the same quality.

I sometimes think that ball teams reflect the cities they represent. That probably is only imagination.

There is no doubt about the current Cubs being typically Chicago, however. Not because it's a Windy City team that boasts Dizzy Dean, either. The most powerful wind that ever whipped in off Lake Michigan wouldn't budge Dizzy's kite.

The Cubs just happen to be a hustle bustle ball club that might annoy and upset any team on any given day, even Col. Ruppert's Yankees though it may not intimidate lese majeste to say it.

YANKS REJECT GABBY

You would think so to hear the talk that has been going around in baseball circles in recent weeks. But the Ruppert Rifles can be had. Which doesn't say that Gabby Hartnett's Little Bears will have 'em. Only that they can, if they'll keep on fighting as they fought for the National League pennant through the last month of the season.

By the way, how many of you bright students of baseball history knew that the Yankees were the first major league baseball club to scout "Two Fingered" Hartnett, and that they turned him down because he couldn't hit?

Pittsburgh fans will be delighted to learn that Leo can't hit though the message to Traynor comes a trifle late.

A lot of us benighted National Leaguers have thought for almost two decades that the "Flash" could hit pretty good, and catch better than bad.

BIG CHANCE FOR EACH

Not that he can carry the large William Dickey's shinguards, if what I have been hearing and reading in the papers is correct. But simply that he was better than a green hand when it came to the catching and hitting department.

Only a chump would try to make anybody believe that the Yankees haven't a better chance than the Cubs to win the series. Only an even greater chump would try to lead anybody to believe that the busy Bruins have no chance at all.

They've got a chance, and if 'General Bill' Lee, the Louisiana swamp tiger, can continue his fast pace, they'll have a royal chance.

The first game is the most important of any World Series, save possibly the deciding one. To win it gives a team an incalculable edge that it can parlay into victory by hustling on every play, running out every hit. Forcing the fighting, in short.

Because, as on a roulette wheel, every ball game is a complete new deal, and in a short series the early loser doesn't have an unlimited number of rolls in which to come back.

A defeat or so, and he's pressing. And no matter how good he may be, when a man starts pressing, the eight-ball is not far away.

They say percentage is against the Yanks because no team ever won three world championships in a row. That's true, "Percentage" doesn't mean much. The same kind of percentage as hunting against the Cubs for they always fare badly in World Series play.

Not since Frank Chance the peerless leader of 1907 and 1908 got the team of a lifetime for Chicago into the World Series of 1908 and won it has a Cub team really come close.

Marse Joe McCarthy will attest to that, since he had the Wrigley warriors practically on even terms with the Philadelphia Athletics in the 1929 series, when the roof fell in.

My memory is that the Bears were leading by something like 8 to 1 late in the fourth game, when Hack Wilson started playing ring around-rosie under fly balls in center field. Anyhow, the game wound up 10 to 8, and it was all very sad for the McCarthy men of a decade ago.

MUST WAIT AND SEE

We could struggle through every position on the two teams that set the '38 series ball rolling, and make out a reasonably good case for the belittled Bruins in doing it. Herman vs. Gordon, Jurges vs. Crosetti, Hack vs. Rolfe in most positions the Bears shape up fairly well in any fair comparison.

But that would be, first of all, boring. Besides the time for it, if ever, has passed. Let's sum it up by saying that the National Leaguers wear caps, spikes, and gloves on the field, and chew tobacco just like ball players.

Yep, and spit through their teeth and bark: "Come on, ol' boy, you can do it, ol' boy, ol' boy!"

Which is to say that the Frick fellows give a reasonably good characterization of top flight ball players for newsreel purposes.

They may not belong on the same field with the Yanks, and the Cub's howitzers from the banks of the Harlem may win this best four-out-of-seven-game series in three games, as some insist.

Still, the Cubs will appear in uniforms reasonable alike, and go through the customary motions. Which may be as close as they'll get. But now that the series actually is with us, it may be the better part of wisdom to wait and see.

Grimm Barred From Air Lanes

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (AP)—Charlie Grimm, displaced as Chicago Cub manager and then cut out of a share of the player's World Series pool, also is out so far as broadcasting the series between the Cubs and New York Yankees.

He stood revealed that because of his recent connection with the National League Commissioner K. M. Landis found Grimm could not broadcast the games. Petrillo, President Ford Frick of the National League and President Will Hayden of the American League asked the commissioner to record he's going but the commissioner stood pat.

* * *

This should be one of the biggest money series in the game's history. A fortune of $750,000 awaits it at the Cub ticket office. Of this sum $219,867 will be rebated if the series is decided in four or five games. Whether the total receipts for the entire series will exceed that of the Cub-Tiger six-game series in 1935, $1,073,794, is problematical but with Yankee Stadium's 70,029 and the Cub capacity of 44,468, the individual players share may go to $7,000 each for the winners and $4500 for the losers.

* * *

Stock Market Note: The 10,000 shares of Cub stock increased $300,600 in market value in the wake of the team's pennant surge. Quoted at 148 bid and 152 asked a week ago, the stock soared to 165 bid and 175 asked, then jumped with one sale at 180.

A minute later someone told the bluecoat he had been talking to Ruffing, powerful Yank pitcher.

Huh! grunted the officer "maybe I should have started him for Kokomo, Ind."

What a Hit!

Worth $1,250,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (INS)—Business men figured that Gabby Hartnett's "million-dollar home run" against the Pirates that practically won the pennant for the Cubs was even more over $1,250,000.

About 17,000 out-of-town tickets have been sold. With transportation averaging $15 and another $30 in expenses for the two days, the series will mean at least $750,000 to the city. That doesn't count nearly $500,000 in tickets for the games, or money to be spent by local fans.

Montreal Bout For McCoy

By JACK CONWAY

IF THE CUBS are to beat the Yankees in the World Series, they will have to display power in batting . . . One-Man Grid Teams Dominate Colleges

Columbia, B. U., Harvard, Brown Bank on Aces

By WILL CONNELL

Glued to the wagons of a few gridiron greats are the fates of a flock of top teams as the college campaign gets up steam.

Football may be a team game, but this year, more than in any for a long span, the record's writing depends on soloists.

Perhaps the talent is being spread thinner across the gridirons of the East, but there's no doubt that minus a few kingpins the game would promise much less color than is the case.

Take John McLaughry from Brown, or Torb Macdonald from Harvard, Sid Luckman from Columbia, Sol Nechtem from Boston University and Bob MacLeod from Dartmouth and what would you have? They are merely the first five examples on a long list.

Not one of the above teams is deep in reserves and two or three of the above couldn't substitute more than two or three men and still click.

LIONS NEED LUCKMAN

The advance reports about Dartmouth might lead you to think the team a steamroller. It isn't. Preseason estimates, still largely accepted, counted on at least three great Indian players who are out of the picture.

If Earl Blaik didn't have MacLeod, 200-pound back, his team would be a correct short end bet going to Princeton Saturday.

The same thing is true about large Mr. Luckman, Lou Little's prize package, but in greater degree, for while Dartmouth has a large and husky squad, Columbia operates with eleven players, plus a few boys named Joe.

Harvard isn't quite as dependent on the speedy Macdonald, but if he wasn't in there to add the necessary skyrocket touch, Dick Harlow's deception wouldn't worry his tough opponents very much.

John McLaughry is not the whole Brown team. That platoon is a better balanced unit than any of the others mentioned. But black him out of the Bruin picture and there would be no joy at all in Aldrich Field.

LOST WITHOUT NECHTEM

Sol Nechtem is the top case for the argument. Last Saturday B. U., despite a couple of weeks with little practise, figured to beat Lehigh under wraps. In the first minute of play the Chelsea flash sustained a dented back, was taken out by Hanley and from then on the Terriers had to fight for a tie.

Other popular teams, like Holy Cross, Pitt, Cornell, Boston College, are so much deeper that they can lose someone and still roll. Their coaches can spend most of their worry budgets on other vital things.

But the one-man team coaches shudder and quake daily, and if you like your shudders and quakes, follow their teams. You'll have an All-America candidate on your books if you can shiver the particular bright star safely through the weeks ahead.

Luckman pays attention to his studies, too. Doesn't this prove it?

Luckman Modest Grid Figure

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (INS) — Slingin' Sidney Luckman, the Samuel Baugh of Columbia, today preferred singing the might of the Pitt Panther to offering a commentary on his own genius as displayed against Yale.

"What a team they have at Pittsburgh!" Sidney clapped palm to cheek in a gesture of awe; "it looks like the best in the East, even in the country. What a backfield! Goldberg, Stebbins, Chickerneo and Cassiano—where can you find anything to match that?

"Cornell has a swell club, maybe the toughest in the Ivy League. We play them later on and that should be quite a battle. Dartmouth has a fine team.

"It seems Minnesota's come up with another one of those bone-crushing elevens. And, gosh, look at what Notre Dame did . . ."

"But what about you?" the reporter interrupted. "For instance, how do you feel about playing pro football?"

"I don't expect to play pro ball," he replied. "There's a good spot open for me to go into business and I can't see myself giving it up unless the pro offers are exceptionally good.

"This is the best Columbia football team I've been on.

"How do I think we'll go against Army Saturday? Well, all I can say is that Army should be tougher than Yale and Yale was far from easy."

Then he biked Baker Fieldward for practice.

NAVY SCOUTS ARMY

WILL SIT IN ON COLUMBIA GAME

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 5 (INS)—Seldom have navy football players and directors been so interested in any game in which their own team did not take part, as they are in the contest Saturday between the Army and Columbia at West Point. The Army will meet the Navy in its final game of the season, while Columbia will play the Navy the last game before the final contest.

Columbia has already won its spurs by winning from Yale, but the Army has had two rather easy opponents, and Saturday's game will be its real test.

Frank Foster, of the Navy coaching staff, will give the once over to both teams as the Navy's scout.

Grimm Incident Puts Cubs on Spot

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (INS)—Chicago's Cubs may be heroes in the eyes of the home fans, but to the New York Yankees they are a team to be held up to ridicule and humiliation. Moreover, the Yanks consider them money-hungry and greedy.

This attitude of course emanates from the fact that Charlie Grimm, ex-manager of the Cubs, was voted out of a cut of the World Series money, even though he served more than half a season at the helm of the National League pennant winners.

"That's just an old Cub custom," said one Yankee player. "They pulled the same stunt in 1932 by voting Mark Koenig just a half-share after he had won the pennant for them. They got a riding in that series that was so hard they never did get their mind on baseball. They're going to get hell in this series, too.

DUE FOR RIFFING

"We'll make their faces so red they will not know what they are doing."

Action of the Cubs in taking such a stand against their old manager seems to have been resented in many quarters. A poll of writers assigned to the series revealed that not only they, but all the cities they represent think the Cubs were not only short sighted but "just plain stupid," as many phrased it.

When Art Fletcher, Joe McCarthy's first assistant, heard of it he grinned broadly. Those who know Fletcher know that he is the top jockey of the club.

"I haven't anything to say," said Fletcher, "at least not for the public," and shook his head significantly.

Beating back to the 1932 series, the Yankees flayed the Cubs as mercilessly verbally as they did on the field of mortal combat. Babe Ruth openly taunted the Cub players for their "cheapness," his crowning remark being made to Koenig in front of the other Chicago players.

"You were a good guy when you were with the Yankees," Babe said, "I don't know how you ever got mixed up with that bunch of cheap skates."

Dying Boy Prays For Cubs

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (INS)—John Edward English, 14, prayed for the Cubs to win the World Series today as he fingered the autographed baseballs given him personally by Rip Collins and Bill Jurges.

John, suffering from neuroma, a dread form of cancer, faces certain death within three weeks, doctors said.

But his abiding wish as he lay in his bed, beside which was a radio, was not for his own recovery—it was for the Cubs to win.

When word of the boy's fervent wish reached members of the Cubs and Yankees, all the Yanks signed their names on one baseball and the Cubs affixed theirs on the other. Then Collins and Jurges delivered the balls to the happy lad.

John Edward, after thanking them worshipfully, said:

"Beat those Yanks."

Steak-Eater

Lee Baffles Wife

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (INS)—Big Bill Lee, mainstay of the Cubs' pitching staff, is a hero, all right, to the fans, but he's somewhat of a problem to Mrs. Lee.

Bill, it seems, dotes on steaks. His favorite meal is a big thick steak with a couple extra as side dishes.

"That's all very fine," says Mrs. Lee, "and I guess it doesn't hurt him any, but my goodness, he doesn't even want vegetables to go with them, and it sets a bad example for little Bill III, and Amanda."

Yanks Barrage Cubs' Bleachers

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (INS)—With the regularity of siege guns the Yankees plumped balls into the bleachers during batting practice, but Manager Hartnett kept the Cubs from getting awed by herding theme into the clubhouse as soon as their own session on the field was over.
